Martin Assails Mrs. Pinchot as 'Red'

Too Many Hyacinths.
Relics of the Boom.
Wanted, a Very Deep Hole.
Beer and the Repeal.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SEBRING, Fla., May 10.

COMING NORTH through Florida you still see canals and lakes thickly covered with blossoms and green leaves of the beautiful water hyacinth.

Florida does not find them beautiful with all their magnificent purple color. Someone imported plants for a pool in his garden. They have spread, as rabbits spread in Australia, and as muskrats in Europe have spread, disastrously.

The hyacinths block canals and lakes, preventing navigation. Cattle like and eat them, but can't hold enough to live on, the plants being nearly all water. Some genius may make such marvelous fertility profitable.

ALONG THE Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast Line you see sad relics of unwise building in the "boom days." The worst part of the booming was the work of "real estaters" from other states. You see many miles of sidewalks, grass growing between the sections, miles of roads and "developments" abandoned, and near a racetrack a gigantic hotel built by men who forgot that racing lasts only a few days, that those that bet go and come in their automobiles.

The floors of the hotel, several hundred feet long, never opened, are now used to raise chickens.

BUT THOSE surplus sidewalks and roads are not entirely wasted. Here and there a sunburned boy rides his bicycle on the sidewalks, or a colored man jogs his mule along the hastily built roads. Meanwhile Florida possesses thousands of miles of magnificent through highways that are crowded.

Florida business men believe that, having "known adversity first," boom collapse, fruit fly, and wind storm, they will be first to recover prosperity.

AT BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Mr. Kingsbury, head of Standard Oil of California, has sent drills into the ground to a depth of 10,440 feet, looking for oil. It is the deepest hole ever drilled in the United States.

What lies below the bottom of that hole, say ten or fifty miles farther down?

What treasures of which we know nothing are hidden away in this round ball to provide for our race, which, according to Prof. Jeans, is destined to last, on earth, one million million years longer?

THE EARTH'S heat forty or fifty miles down would furnish power for the whole earth, making oil and water power unnecessary.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., might dig such a power-producing hole, when through with Rockefeller Center. Engineers say it could be done for thirty or forty million dollars. Uncle Sam himself might try it if it were not wrong, communistic, bolshevistic and socialistic for a government to do anything for itself.

MANY BELIEVE the return of beer will prevent repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. People could be kept by law from drinking whisky, gin and other alcoholic poisons, as they are kept from open use of morphine, cocaine and other deadly drugs. That would be desirable.

Unfortunately, it has been proved that government has no power, even by spending millions, to prevent bootleg sales of whisky. And while whisky continues to be the monopoly of bootleggers, hi-jackers and criminals generally, the illicit trade will continue to finance our national crime wave, ten times higher than that in any other country.

GANDHI, SINCERE, misguided, has begun another fast, and will eat nothing for three weeks.

It is a poor way to free 300,000,000 Asiatics from the rule of Englishmen, who will continue to drink beer and champagne and eat roast beef, while Gandhi starves.

To achieve liberty, or conquer others, you must fight. Starving yourself won't do. The wise British do not want a national hero dead on their hands. Four hours after Gandhi started his fast, he was released from prison.

SUGGESTION TO President Roosevelt, head of the Army and Navy:

Why not change the Navy rule that compels naval officers to stop operating airships after they learn how to do it?

When he has really had enough experience to understand aircraft, his superiors say:

"Now you go to sea and float on the surface for awhile."

That is not a joke, but serious fact. If a Navy officer who knew how to run dirigibles had been in command of the Akron, instead of being sent off to sea to float around on a battleship, because of an asinine naval rule, the Akron would probably not have been lost.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS says Washington worries about "a deadlock on war debts." That might make President Roosevelt's task harder. A deadlock in the French Parliament shows that France finds discussion of the debts very painful.

The British apparently have decided not to pay the amount due in June, unless they get promises that will offset the payment many times. The fact is that Europe does not want and does not INTEND to pay.

Her diplomats offer most beautiful compliments to Mr. Roosevelt, but Americans cannot accept such compliments in lieu of billions of debts that will be loaded on their backs, if Europe is allowed not to pay.

BLAST ROCKS WIDE AREA; SHATTERS WINDOWS

East Liberty Leader Blames Racketeers, Four Periled

Racketeers for whom he refused to intercede with the present administration were blamed for the wrecking by a dynamite and shrapnel bomb early today of the home of Charles Martin, 115 North Aiken avenue.

Martin is Republican chairman of the Tenth Ward and a member of the Board of Assessors of the city of Pittsburgh by appointment of former Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Martin, his brother, James, an investigator of the Allegheny County Jury Commissioners, and their two sisters, Miss Mary, 74, and Miss Effie, 27, escaped uninjured. The latter is employed by the Board of Public Education.

TWO MEN QUIZZED

Following questioning of two men, Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide said police would report "progress" soon in their investigation.

An attorney for Frank Churizzi, 5405 Butler street, one of the two men examined, refused to permit further questioning of Churizzi until a formal charge had been made against him. City Detective Michael Tortorelli questioned the man this morning and directed him to appear at headquarters at 10 a. m. Instead, Attorney Joseph A. Rossi appeared.

Joe Girgiolo, 31, of 5164 Butler street, was arrested and held for investigation. He said he was a barber.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

The force of the blast was felt over a wide area.

Martin, who has been a ward chairman eight years and was appointed to the Board of Assessors by former Mayor Kline during his first administration, told Detective Tortorelli that he had been visited by three men Monday night and was asked that he "O. K." them with the administration of Mayor John S. Herron. Martin added, Detective Tortorelli said:

"I had been to the fights at the Arena and the three men were waiting. I told them I had nothing to do with any rackets and couldn't help them."

The damage was estimated by police at $10,000.

James Martin told police a door on the kitchen stove had been blown off and a clock on the stove stopped at 3:30 a. m., the time of the blast. He said:

"I was awakened by the blast but thought it was thunder. I started to go back to sleep when I heard my sister scream."

BETTY HANNA..HER "BONZO" RAN DOWN BURGLAR SUSPECT

Miss Hanna and her pet spitz-fox terrier, who set up a commotion, attracted her father, City Detective John Hanna, into a street chase that ended with the capture of William Knechtel, 23, 620 College avenue, arrested and docketed as a burglar suspect. The Hanna door at 518 College avenue had been opened. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

TRADE GAINS SPUR RISE IN STOCKS

Wheat, Cotton Prices Join Upswing; Dollar Stable

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Brightening industrial skies brought a renewed advance to stocks today.

Many leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange advanced $1 to more than $5, while Chicago wheat sold a cent or more higher and cotton here advanced nearly $1 a bale.

Changes in other commodities were generally moderate. Fluctuations of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings tended to narrow. Bonds were strong.

The United States Steel Corporation reported an increase of 23,572 tons in its backlog of unfilled orders during April. This gain, the first upturn by this industrial barometer since last October, was somewhat smaller than the more optimistic forecasters had looked for and stocks slowed down a bit when the figures appeared at noon.

United States Steel common had an extreme rise of $2.62 to a price of $49; American Telephone jumped nearly $3 to $103.62, while Allied Chemical soared $5.50 to $94.50.

General Motors, very active, advanced $1 to $23.62.

Columbian Carbon climbed $4 and Du Pont nearly as much, the latter selling just under $60.

Tariff Illusions

A STRANGE illusion hovers over the international economic conversations which have been taking place at Washington.

The administration, especially Secretary of State Hull, is deluded by the superstition that but for political restraints trade would flow in vast and unprecedented quantities across international frontiers.

Accordingly, the hope has been fostered that out of the international economic conference at London next month will come messianic international agreements which will put food into the mouths of the hungry.

The actualities in connection with the proposed international tariff truce, however, suggest that none but our altruistic American statesmen seek literally to apply to the competition of trade the idealistic phrases of diplomatic blah.

The realistic French will accept the truce only with a safeguarding clause, which will keep the initiative in French hands.

IN ASTUTE Britain, it is reported that the canny colleagues of Ramsay MacDonald are opposed to a tariff truce, which would tie the hands of the government.

Meantime, while Prime Minister MacDonald has talked beautiful words about the loveliness of international accord, Great Britain has sought to feather its own nest by negotiating trade treaties with France and Belgium, as well as with the Argentine.

American officials, who are still up in the clouds, ought to be awakened by the true talk of Eigo Fukai, Japanese delegate to the world economic conference, who said:

"Everybody agrees that reduction of tariffs is desirable, but as to the way of reaching that objective, I doubt if clear-cut methods can be formulated at the world economic conference."

The bargaining capacity of the American delegates to the London conference will be heightened

Chairman of G. O. P. Sneers at Struggle For Living Wage

SCRANTON, May 10.—(AP.)—Characterizing as racketeers "people who "array classes against each other," Gen. Edward Martin today assailed a "prominent Pennsylvania woman" who wore a "flaming red costume" to lead a procession of strikers.

Asserting that "red is the color of revolution," the Republican state chairman, told an American Legion conference that the thought came to him "that this misguided woman might as well have carried a placard telling the world that she favored the Russianization of America."

WORE RED DRESS

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor, a bitter political foe of Martin, marched in the picket lines of "child strikers" in Allentown and Northampton last week in protest against low wages and long hours in Lehigh Valley garment factories. She wore a red velvet coat and a red hat.

Martin asserted that persons who seek to arouse class hatreds "profess to be actuated by noble sentiments and high aims . . . but the truth is that back of every such racketeer is the desire for personal gain or aggrandizement." He said:

"You will find these people not only on alley soap boxes, but in high places of society. Sometimes they assume fags and tatters, sometimes silks and satins. Sometimes their role takes them to cellar or attic living quarters and other times their homes are palaces.

'THEATRICAL PINKS'

"Despite these theatrically-inclined 'pinks,' there is little danger that America will permit itself to be Russianized."

The organization chief expressed the hope that President Roosevelt will succeed in "his comprehensive and commendable program."

He asserted, however, that he does not believe that the United States should abandon its "independent world-wide commercial policy," adding that "to lower the barrier would be harmful to America and its ideals."

MAN SHOT DOWN FROM AMBUSH

In a suspected racket flare-up, Charles (Texas) Hlaris, 28, Ambridge poolroom proprietor, was shot from ambush as he left his place of business early today.

He is in the Valley Hospital, Sewickley, with 16 shotgun slugs in his body, and is not expected to live.

District Attorney Arch De Castrique, of Beaver County, and his assistant, James Ceris, joined with Police Chief John W. Flocker and state police in hunting Hlaris' assailant.

PRIEST RELATES MEANS' STORY

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP)—The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, a Catholic priest, related in District of Columbia Supreme Court today the story he said Gaston B. Means had told him of a stranger with a red lantern who whispered the mystic number "11" and thereby induced Means to turn over to him $100,000 for the return of the Lindbergh baby.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the kidnaped child, testified yesterday in the trial of Means and Norman T. Whitaker on a charge of conspiring to victimize Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, the estranged wife of the former publisher of the Washington Post.

The priest said he was drawn into the negotiations by the representation of Means to Mrs. McLean that the kidnapers wished to deliver the child to a churchman.

He told of conferences with Mrs. McLean, Means and others and said he was at Mrs. McLean's home when she turned over $100,000 to Means.

Steel Industry Past Low Point, Weir Declares

Conservative business and industrial leaders, supported by banking, employment and railroad figures, today pronounced Pittsburgh's business outlook "encouraging."

Some went so far as to declare the industrial machine has definitely moved out of the valley of depression and is climbing steadily.

Reflecting the uptrend in the district's major enterprises, the Pennsylvania Railroad's car loadings for the first week of May were 5.5 per cent above the same week of last year and 6.1 per cent higher than the previous week, it was learned from dependable authority, although the company's report has not been made public.

WEIR OPTIMISTIC

Voicing the opinion of heads of the steel industry here, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, declared today:

"We are past the low point. While I cannot say how long the upward swing in steel activity is to continue, it is safe to say that the industry is not going back to the low levels which prevailed two months ago.

"Orders are coming from a wide range of buyers. The expansion in sales has not been due to any one type of consumer. Buyers are not storing

HARRIMAN CASE DELAY UPHELD

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—John W. Pole, former comptroller of the currency, told a Senate investigating committee that defalcations by bank presidents are "common matters" in the comptroller's office and that therefore reported irregularities in the Harriman bank of New York were handled in a "routine" way.

Pole was a witness in the Senate's investigation of delay in the prosecution of Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company. Pole said he made no personal investigation of the Harriman irregularities, but relied on the examiner's report.

Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, asked:

"You mean defalcations of bank presidents are common?"

"Yes."

"To the amount of more than a million dollars?"

"No."

Robinson remarked:

"If defalcations of bank presidents are common, no wonder

Rivera Ready to Battle Rockefeller for Art

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Legal action against the Rockefellers may be taken by Diego Rivera, noted Mexican painter, if no agreement can be reached by which he can finish the three murals in the 74-story R. C. A. building in Rockefeller Center, he announced today.

Because he had made a large portrait of Lenin dominate the central mural group, Rivera was "paid off" with a $14,000 check last night and dismissed from the building.

The huge Mexican worker-artist today said:

"I have two objections to the Rockefeller action. First, they have no right to stop work on an uncompleted work of art. Second, their action in covering the painting is an outrage. The people must be the judges, since the paintings were executed for the public. The Rockefeller action amounts to assassination."

His voice rose on the last word to a crescendo of emotion. He was informed:

"The Rockefellers are reported to have said that they will let the painting remain if you consent to alter it."

He replied:

"Never will I alter it. And if they keep it covered, as it is now, I will fight."

Suspect Arrested As 'Petter' Bandit

Arthur Mooney, 27, who gives his home as Charleston, W. Va., but who, police say, lives in a houseboat at the foot of Brown's Bridge, is being held by Mifflin Township police as a suspect in recent "petting party" holdups.

Police Chief J. J. Crawford, of Mifflin Township, said Mooney had several feet of clothesline and a flashlight in his possession when arrested last night by Motorcycle Officer Andrew Butko in a parked machine near the County Airport.

U. S. ACCEPTS BRITISH CHANGES TO TARIFF TRUCE PLAN

MOVE PLACES ACTION UP TO POWERS

Roosevelt Opposed to Farm Import Tax During Truce

LONDON, May 10.—(AP.)—A note from the United States government was received today giving qualified assent to the world tariff truce proposal as revised by the British government.

The truce project was strengthened somewhat by suggestions from the United States government, conveyed to British quarters this noon by Norman H. Davis, the United States ambassador-at-large, American circles here said.

Suggestions made in the note from the United States were minor, but were accepted immediately by the British and submitted at once to six other governments, whose answers are expected today or early tomorrow.

The text of the proposal, as now arranged, provides not only for the acceptance of an immediate tariff armistice by the eight principal nations but includes also a recommendation to other nations of the world to join in.

The eight powers represented in the organizing committee of the economic conference are the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Belgium and Germany.

F. R. AGAINST TAX

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt definitely indicated today that in view of the world tariff truce he does not think the United States should impose import taxes on agricultural products, as provided under the new farm bill, during the period of the truce.

He believes there will be no necessity for levying these import charges between now and June 12, when the world economic conference meets in London, and the preliminary truce would expire. The United States plans to move a second truce at the opening of the conference to cover its duration.

The farm bill provides for processing taxes on wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, rice, tobacco and dairy products as a means of raising the amount the farmer receives. To prevent foreign imports of these products from benefiting in the American market a compensatory tax would be levied on the same articles brought into this country.

The farm bill now is in the final stage of enactment, and probably will reach the President in a very short time.

ENVOY TO SHUN BREECHES

NEW YORK, May 10.—(INS.)—Declaring that Great Britain and the United States should co-operate, and announcing his intention not to wear knee breeches at court, Robert W. Bingham, new American ambassador to the Court of St. James, sailed today aboard the U. S. Liner Washington, largest vessel ever built on this side of the Atlantic.

Claude G. Bowers, new American ambassador to Spain, also was aboard.

Ambassador Bowers said he thought the Spanish ambassadorship was "the most important post" in Europe.

EXPERT URGES WABASH TUBE

Purchase of the Wabash Bridge and tunnel for a vehicular traffic artery to the South Hills, was recommended today by Ole Singsted, New York consulting engineer.

Singsted, in his report to the County Commissioners, after recommending the purchase, had two proposals. One was to repair it at a cost of approximately $1,200,000 for a two-lane highway. The other was for making a four-lane artery, by drilling another hole through Mount Washington alongside the present tube.

Singsted recommended the purchase at the price agreed upon, $3,000,000, and said a new outlet is needed for the South Hills.

SHELTON THEFT JAILS BOY

As an aftermath to the recapture of a stolen auto, when five boys were fired on by a patrolman, Otto Viedekal, 16, of 1423 Reedsdale street, was remanded to jail for further investigation in Morals Court today.

Patrolman J. Bradley testified he recognized the car of Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, in East Liberty Sunday night—less than an hour after it was reported stolen.

Arresting Viedekal, Bradley fired on the other boys who ran, and believed he hit one of them, he says.

the people have no confidence in the banks."

Pole agreed:

"No wonder at all."

Pole said the irregularities were reported to him by telephone from New York in June, 1932, but that he recommended no action against Harriman because the statute of limitations was not involved and the condition of the banks was such that it "might have proved disastrous."

Robinson asked:

"If it had been a clerk you would have recommended action, wouldn't you?"

Pole replied:

"I doubt it at that time."

Senator Neely (Dem.), of West Virginia, asked if prosecution of Harriman would not have restored confidence. Pole replied:

BIG MEASURES SPEEDED BY CONGRESS

Inflation and Farm Relief Swept Forward

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—The Norris-Simpson cost of production amendment to which the administration objected was stricken from the farm bill by the Senate today, sending the bill to President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—A sheaf of momentous legislation, headed by the big farm relief-inflation plan, was swept toward the lawbooks today by a lively-acting Congress.

Persuading the Senate to forsake its much-disputed cost-of-production amendment to the bulky farm measure was the last task confronting administration leaders before the signature of President Roosevelt could make effective simultaneously:

The $2,000,000,000 farm mortgage bill.

RELIEF BILL

Only Vice President Garner's name was needed on the $500,000,000 Wagner-Lewis relief bill before Mr. Roosevelt could make it law—possibly before nightfall.

Crowding swiftly behind were two measures already in the conference stage—the vast Tennessee valley development program and the administration bill for protecting the investing public by regulating security sales.

At the opening of its session the Senate was prevented by a Republican objection from considering immediately the tax bill passed by the House, which is to continue the federal 1-cent gas tax, reduce local postage to 2 cents, and shift the electricity tax from the householder's bill to the power company.

RAIL LABOR OPPOSITION

Vigorous opposition of railroad labor to the administration measure for rail reorganization under a federal co-ordinator was put before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by Donald Richberg, spokesman of the rail labor executives, while the House Commerce Committee heard a supporting explanation of the bill from Joseph B. Eastman, Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

A question mark hung over the Glass permanent banking reform bill, with the Virginia Senator's friends eager to push it now and the administration still undecided whether to support it in the special session which it hopes to end quickly.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, proposed in the Senate a new amendment to the constitution, designed to bring insurance companies under federal regulation like banks.

P. R. R. Recalls Men At Conway Yards

ROCHESTER, Pa., May 10.—Increased car movements at the Conway yards of the Pennsylvania railroad was responsible for the recall from furlough of 30 train men this week.

HITLER SEIZES SOCIALISTS' PROPERTY

German Students to Burn 30,000 Books

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

BERLIN, May 10.—While thousands of German students prepared for a giant book-burning demonstration against "Marxism," the Nazi regime of Chancellor Adolf Hitler moved today to stamp out the remnants of the Social Democratic party.

The Attorney General ordered confiscation of all property belonging to the party and to the Reichsbanner, militant Republican organization.

He cited as grounds for this action alleged discovery of "numerous cases of embezzlement when the Nazis took over the Socialist Labor Union."

Newspapers of the Social Democratic party and the Reichsbanner were likewise ordered seized as the Nazi government moved to make its domination complete.

Following up the action of the attorney general, the Prussian minister of justice announced he had created a special court to deal with cases of "corruption and sabotage."

Carrying torches and Nazi banners, the students will parade the streets of Berlin to the State Opera Square in front of the University of Berlin, where the burning festival of "un-German books" will be held. Brass bands will figure prominently in this "purification" of German intellectual life.

"We have removed from the public libraries all the works of Jews, Marxists and Pacifists.

"More than 30,000 copies of these books will be piled up and burned at midnight while Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels (Nazi minister of enlightenment) will make the 'fire speech.'"

FEE RACKET CURB BEGINS

The new system expected to abolish the police "witness fee racket" was put into operation today.

By the new plan, devised after county auditors disclosed some witnesses, mostly police officers, were collecting as high as $18 a day by testifying in different cases, no witness will collect more than $3 a day.

Three new county employes will look after the card index files. District Attorney A. T. Park named Harold Moyer as his clerk. Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley appointed James Burgess. A third employe to check grand jury witnesses will be named later.

DEATH CLAIMS H. H. PATTERSON

Harry Howard Patterson, 58, member of the law firm Seymour, Patterson and Siebeneck, died last night at his home, 1431 Beechwood boulevard.

He was one of the organizers of the Longue Vue Country Club, past president of the Pittsburgh Golf Club and a member of the Duquesne Club.

For 25 years he engaged in the law practice and for many years was interested in coal and oil operations.

He leaves his widow, Helen Corbus Patterson; a son, Harry C. Patterson, and a daughter, Mrs. Murray Grimes.

Murphy Takes Oath As Filipino Governor

DETROIT, May 10.—(INS.)—Mayor Frank Murphy today became Governor-General of the Philippines. He resigned the mayoralty and was sworn in by Judge Vincent M. Brennan as Governor of the islands.

Frank Couzens, president of the City Council and son of U. S. Senator James Couzens, was sworn in as Murphy's successor.

NANCY TORRES

FILM ACTRESS FOILS BANDITS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 10.—(AP.)—Nancy Torres, screen actress from Mexico City, told yesterday of hiding two diamond rings in her mouth when she, Paulina Torres, sister of Raquel Torres, and Walter A. Merrill, film writer, were held up by two men and robbed of several hundred dollars in money and jewelry.

Merrill had escorted the actresses home after calling on friends. The robbery was at the door of the apartment of Nancy, who is not related to Paulina, small parts player.

Nancy said she slipped her rings off and placed them in her mouth as she climbed from Merrill's automobile under command of the holdup men.

Merrill surrendered $140 cash and an antique French chain and watch valued at $350, he said. Paulina handed over $10 and Nancy $5 in purses, they reported.

MARTIN SCORES MRS. PINCHOT

industrial district. The wife of Gov. Pinchot said:

"It's amazing, the response I have received. It proves that Pennsylvania is not the only state where sweatshops and other evil working conditions exist."

In a radio address last night Mrs. Pinchot blamed the Legislature's failure to enact old age pension, minimum wage and shorter working time legislation, is blamed by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot on "hidebound reactionaries."

She charged these reactionaries with having "blocked every effort to give the working classes of Pennsylvania a new deal." She said:

"Just as Senator David A. Reed battles in Washington to hold forth for concentrated wealth against the rights of the farmer and working classes, so the Mellon-Martin-controlled Legislature in Pennsylvania has carried on the fight in behalf of the special interests of a few at the expense of the welfare of the many."

FEDERAL RELIEF BILL PASSED

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—Millions will soon be going out to the states as outright gifts from the federal government to relieve human distress.

Congress completed action yesterday on a measure appropriating $500,000,000 for this purpose. Vice President Garner's name was to be affixed today and then it will be placed before President Roosevelt for his signature.

A federal relief administration will distribute the funds—$250,000,000 on the basis of $1 for every $3 spent in states, counties and municipalities for local relief until October 1 and $250,000,000 after that date in lump sums with no dollar matching provisions.

BONUS ARMY GETS U. S. HELP

Government Erecting Tents to Shelter 10,000 Marchers

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—A city of tents was being erected today at Fort Hunt, an old Army post 10 miles from the capital, to house the second encampment of bonus-seeking war veterans.

Some 200 already have been registered. Approximately 200 more were marching from Baltimore. Veterans' leaders say 10,000 will be here by the end of the week when a week-long conclave is to open with the approval of the Roosevelt administration.

RIVALS CLAIM FORT

An infantry company from Fort Mead, Maryland, is setting up the tents for 8,000 at Fort Hunt. Field kitchens will feed the bonus marchers. Bus service into the city, it was reported, has been arranged.

Two rival groups of leaders claim recognition. Leaders of the Veterans' Expeditionary Force have negotiated with the White House for use of the army fort. Leaders of the Bonus Expeditionary Force, Inc., say they will march their followers, including those en route from Baltimore, into Washington and throw themselves upon federal resources.

ISSUES WARNING

Rigid orders against congregating on the Capitol Plaza were issued to first arrivals to the forthcoming "veterans' convention" by Capt. S. J. Gnash, of the capitol police.

To small groups, he explained it was against regulations for any group to congregate on the plaza or grounds and that this rule would be enforced. He also advised some of the veterans that communists might attempt demonstrations at the capitol and he did not wish veterans to mingle with them.

VETERANS' CUTS ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—Sharp-tongued remarks were made in the House today over the $460,000,000 cut in veterans' expenditures, as the members took up the appropriation bill for all the government's independent offices, including the veterans' administration.

Representative Blanton (Dem.), of Texas, told the House that if President Roosevelt does not himself correct "inequities" brought about by the huge reductions, Congress will take the matter in its own hands.

The cuts already have been instituted by executive order, but the present appropriation measure presents them to Congress for the first time.

4,500 JOIN WAR ON SWEAT SHOP

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—(Universal.)—Forty-five hundred dressmakers went on strike today in protest against sweatshop conditions.

The walkout tied up 90 per cent of the industry here, according to Elias Reisberg, vice president of the union and leader of the strike. There was virtually no disorder.

An immediate effect of the action was the application of 20 manufacturers for a settlement.

The strikers demand abolition of the sweatshop through establishment of the 40-hour week, a 20 per cent increase in the present $6 to $8 wage rate, and recognition of their union.

ALLENTOWN, May 10.—(AP.)—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman may be asked to arbitrate the dispute between operators and employes in Eastern Pennsylvania's needle industry, recently disturbed by a strike of girl workers.

'Blue Ribbon' Jury For Wendel 'Heir'

NEW YORK, May 10.—(INS.)—Seventy-five "blue ribbon" veniremen were chosen today in the first move to try Thomas Patrick Morris, claimant of the $35,000,000 estate of the late Ella Wendel, eccentric recluse and last of the wealthy family, for conspiracy.

Letter by Woman, 80, Wins White House Bid

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Pattie Willis South, 80, of Nicholasville, Ky., who has always wanted to have a meal at the White House, "if only bread and milk," may have her wish fulfilled.

Mrs. South expects to be in Washington the latter part of May or early part of June, and Mrs. Roosevelt in New York has dictated to her a letter telling her she would be glad to invite her to a meal if she is herself in Washington at the time.

In the fine, slanting hand of her generation, Mrs. South wrote Mrs. Roosevelt a letter telling of her ambition. She said:

"My few lines will be a surprise to you, but I trust not a shock. The latter part of May or the first week in June I expect to be in your city.

"I am 80 years of age, past, and my aspiration has been to eat one meal in the White House, if only bread and milk.

"When your husband passed through Lebanon, Ky., he spoke for a few moments on the back of the train, and some of my acquaintances said I should be at the train to see and hear him. I remarked jocularly, 'I'll see him and his family at the White House.'"

After stopping to visit the Jersey City Medical Center early today, Mrs. Roosevelt, driving the blue roadster in which she has spent the last week motoring in up-state New York, planned to return to Washington, to arrive there in time for dinner.

Balm Suit Defendant Names 'Other Man'

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—(AP.)—Counsel for Charles Newbold Welsh, wealthy Philadelphian who is being sued for breach of promise by Mrs. Estelle M. Wolon, Chicago, charged here that she had another friend at the time she alleges she was betrothed to Welsh.

The lawyer had the wife and daughter of the alleged friend stand in court and later presented a supposed rival for his affections.

Mrs. Wolon denied that "Edmund G. Grossman," of Chicago, mentioned as the husband and father of the women in court, had paid her expenses. Grossman is now dead, it was brought out.

Grossman and she were "very dear pals" and he "gave his winnings" in roulette to her, Mrs. Wolon said.

"Mrs. Smith" was the third woman asked to stand. She testified:

"This is the girl he was interested in. She molested me."

Mrs. Wolon declared that in Paris Mrs. Welsh demanded that Welsh choose one of them. She said he replied:

"I love you both."

VIOLENT STORM LEAVES HEAVY DAMAGE IN WAKE

SLIDES BLOCK STREETS, JAM TRAFFIC

Huge Hailstones Hurt 4 in Bombardment At Charleroi

Traffic was slowed in several sections of the Pittsburgh district as dirt and stones washed from hillsides during a series of violent rainstorms last night and early today, covered the highways. The storms were accompanied by hail and lightning.

More than an inch of rain fell over the Kiskiminetas and Youghiogheny valleys and a stage of 22 feet is predicted in the local rivers by tomorrow. The rainfall locally amounted to 89 hundredths of an inch and in nearby communities it was much heavier.

MUD RAIN REPORTED

Homestead reported it rained mud. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, skeptical about the report, said the rain might have acted as a filter on ore dust emitted by the furnaces in that district, giving the rain the appearance of muddy water.

Several tons of earth were washed down upon Noblestown road, at Obey avenue; a number of small slides occurred on Bigelow boulevard and others were reported at Suffolk and Rostock streets along East street. Four feet of earth covered East street at Rostock street. A detail of police was on duty at this point all night directing traffic.

BOLT RIPS STREET

Lightning tore a hole several feet deep and about four feet in diameter at 7706 Bennett street. Two transformers were struck at Progress and Warfield streets and at Forsythe and Mullen, North Side. A chimney was struck at 1242 Success street. At Brackenridge a bolt struck the steeple of the Church of God in Hazlett street, tearing away plaster on the interior of the building.

Two persons were injured when a Harmony bus skidded on slippery trolley rails in East street and collided with a West View street car. The injured, Ruth Bassett, of Babcock boulevard, and Charles Willo, 21, of 539 Sixth street, Imperial Gardens, were treated at Allegheny General Hospital and sent home.

LIGHTNING FIRES BARN

Fifteen head of cattle and several horses were led by Coraopolis and Imperial firemen from a blazing barn on the D. M. Dickerson farm on the Beaver road, near Coraopolis, after it was struck by lightning. The barn and machinery valued at $2,500 were destroyed.

Traffic in Beech and Electric avenues, East Pittsburgh, was tied up several hours by landslides.

Rochester firemen were called to extinguish a blaze at the home of Joseph Hindman, 487 Jefferson avenue, after lightning struck a radio aerial and set the radio afire.

Huge Hailstones Hurt 4 In Charleroi District

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 10.—Ancient stories of record hailstorms dwindled to insignificant proportions here last night when Charleroi and Belle Vernon were bombarded by hailstones, some said to have been three inches in diameter, and which caused damage estimated at $15,000.

Four persons were injured, four greenhouses wrecked, scores of automobile tops smashed, hundreds of windows broken and numerous orchards stripped of early foliage.

35 DIE AS GALE HITS 2 STATES

LIVINGSTON, Tenn., May 10.—(AP.)—At least 35 persons were killed and an undetermined number injured in a series of tornadoes that swept sections of Kentucky and Tennessee late last night.

The heaviest toll of life was taken at the settlement of Beaty Swamps, near Livingston, where 26 persons were known dead. Near Lebanon, about 50 miles distant, two Negroes lost their lives. Six were known to have perished at Tompkinsville, Ky., and one at Columbia, Ky.

The storm was reported to have swept the village of Bethsaida, on the Overton-Pickett county line in Tennessee, but all communication lines were down and the extent of the damage could not be determined.

Selma Kurz, Singer, Dies in Vienna

VIENNA, May 10.—(AP.)—Selma Kurz, opera singer, died of pneumonia today.

Bride for Fourth Time

RUTH ELDER MOODY WOMACK CAMP GILLESPIE..NEWLYWED

HUSBAND NO. 4 AND RUTH HOME

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 10.—(INS.)—A bride for the fourth time, Ruth Elder, noted aviatrix, and her new husband, Arnold Gillespie, movie art director, were "at home" today.

Miss Elder said:

"This romance is going to last for life."

Braving a high wind, they flew here yesterday in Miss Elder's plane from Yuma, Ariz., where they were married by Justice E. A. Freeman.

They were married in the same flying togs they wore while participating in an aerial circus at Bakersfield, Cal., Sunday.

HOLD UP STORE DURING STORM

Three armed men held up three employes and a half dozen customers at the Isaly dairy store, 1117 South Braddock avenue, Edgewood, during the height of last night's storm and escaped after looting the cash register of $35, police reported. It was the second holdup of the store within a month.

"This is a holdup. Don't move."

He said that while one guarded the front door and another the rear, a third rifled the cash register.

As the men left they warned:

GANDHI DISCIPLE BREAKS FAST

POONA, India, May 10.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi began the third day of his scheduled three weeks' fast today under care of a physician.

Fears for his life were increased as he admitted suffering severe hunger pains.

Dr. Margaret Spiegel, a German Jewess, broke her counter-fast today. She started it in an effort to force Gandhi to give up his fast, declaring he would violate his religion if he let her die.

Dr. Spiegel, who fled from Germany when the Nazis came into power and became a Gandhi follower, was persuaded to eat on the plea her fast was harming Gandhi. She came here this morning from Madras.

Woman Hanging Wash Loses Life

Mrs. Mary Kozlowski, 63, of 2434 Forbes street, was killed late yesterday when she fell over a 30-foot embankment to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks while hanging clothes in the back yard of her home, according to a Coroner's report.

Mrs. Anna Babinakas, of 1910 Harcums way, saw Mrs. Kozlowski fall and tried to grasp her, but failed.

POLICE LINKED IN LAW CASE SOLICITATION

'Ambulance Chasing' Probe by Bar Also Involves Doctors

A connection still exists between the offices of certain attorneys and desk sergeants at police stations and members of the city and county detective force, according to a report by the Allegheny County Bar Association's committee on solicitation of business.

The report, the second by the committee investigating the activities of "ambulance chasers," was made public today after it was submitted to Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court.

DOCTORS INVOLVED

A hint that physicians indulge in questionable practices to obtain extra fees was contained in the report, which stated:

"From the records of cases which have come before it showing the distribution of funds received in settlements and from verdicts, a presumption has been raised in the minds of the Committee that there exists a practice whereby physicians refer personal injury cases to certain members of the bar and by reason of such reference and perhaps under a definite agreement are then called as "expert" witnesses at the trial of such cases, and for their testimony receive fees which bear a direct relationship to the amount of recoveries."

Although declaring the solicitation of criminal cases in Allegheny County Jail by turnkeys and in Criminal Court by court employes has been stopped, the committee states:

"The practice still prevails whereby criminal cases are referred to certain favored attorneys by desk sergeants at the various police stations, by members of the county detective force and by members of the city detective force. The committee is not prepared to state that this is a general practice, but it has found its exists."

REFORM SUGGESTED

The committee suggests that the cort make rules similar to those in use in Philadelphia courts which will make a stringent requirement that no inmate of any police station or of the Allegheny County Jail be permitted to consult with any attorney until that attorney has entered his appearance in a permanent attorney's docket to be kept att he jail and att he police stations.

The committee announces it has made a careful study of the cases handled by 16 attorneys engaged in the largest number of accident suits in 1929. A startling drop in the number of suits filed by certain of the attorneys has occurred since that time, it is stated.

Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren today declared that although he does not have full details of the report, he knows of no such connection between his men and attorneys, as is alleged. He declared such activity will not be countenanced, and that if he finds it the man will be subject to dismissal.

Two Face Court In 100 Robberies

Joseph Vargo, 19, of 330 Third street, and John Tomasic, 18, of 316 Third street, both of Rankin, were held for court on burglary charges at hearings last night before Justice of the Peace S. H. Willson, of Swissvale.

HIJACKERS GET IMPORTED BEER

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 10.—Police today are searching for a half-barrel of Wurzburger Hofbrau, imported for the Summit Hotel, and stolen yesterday when an attempt was made to hi-jack a consignment of 25 barrels.

As Charles Seaman, driver of the truck, reached Point Lookout, he told police, two men in a small truck suddenly drove in front of him and forced him behind an obstruction which entirely hid both trucks from view.

The driver said he was forced to shut off his motor and threw the keys away. After one-half barrel had been transferred to the smaller truck, he said, the hijackers evidently became frightened at increased traffic and drove rapidly away.

2 HELD IN BEER BARREL THEFT

Paul Friday and Daniel Green of the Independent Brewing Company, are charged with the theft of 21 beer barrels in an information before Alderman Robert H. Logan, Negro, of the Hill district.

H. N. Fox, described as a beer broker, filed the complaint. He alleges that while barrels were being loaded at the East Liberty freight yards, Pennsylvania Railroad, for return to the various owners, 18 full-sized barrels and three half-barrels were taken. They are valued at about $200.

Holdup Man Gets Quick Justice In Court Here

A record for quick justice has been made in Criminal Court.

Draggi Mrdjenovic, of Trafford, held up Marco Gojkovic, of Wall, taking $35, Saturday night. He was arrested Sunday, and the next day waived a hearing for court.

He also waived grand jury action and pleaded guilty to robbery before Judge Samuel H. Gardner, who yesterday sentenced him three to 10 years in the workhouse.

REPORT NEAR ON R. F. C. LOAN

Having "sat in" on the conference of county representatives with officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt today prepared a report on efforts to obtain loans for public improvement projects here.

The county's conferees were expected to return from Washington tomorrow. They are seeking approximately $22,000,000 from the government for a county public works program. The city plans to ask a similar amount for a program of its own later.

Lang and Waldschmidt would not discuss their observations at the conference. They will make a report to Council.

'ARMY' OPENS $98,250 DRIVE

The Salvation Army's annual drive for the $98,250 Home Service Fund was launched today.

The Women's Advisory Council, headed by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller and Lieut. Col. C. B. Campbell today began supervision of a systematic canvass of the county and solicitation within the city.

The campaign will also be directed by Judge Joseph Buffington, George E. Alter and H. C. McEldowney. The drive will continue until May 25. The amount is required to carry on the organization's work in the Pittsburgh district.

About 1,00 women have donated their services in the county house-to-house canvass. Each worker will be supplied with a badge and receipt book. They will wear no other Army insignia.

With the exception of the Fourteenth Ward there will be no canvassing within the city. Mrs. Miller said. In that ward, Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger will be in charge.

MUTINY PERILS PEIPING FORCES

SHANGHAI, May 10.—(INS.)—Menacing China's attempts to prevent Japanese capture of Peiping and Tientsin, a Chinese army under Gen. Fank Chen-Wu revolted in Hopei province today.

Unless it is promptly quelled, the rebellion will lay Peiping open to a double menace—with the Japanese advancing from the north and insurgent troops battering at the city from the south.

Ammunition Seized, Believed for Cubans

MIAMI, Fla., May 10.—(AP.)—United States customs border patrolmen seized 76,000 rounds of ammunition at Tavanier, 75 miles south of Miami, but authorities declined to say where it was destined for shipment pending further investigations today.

The Miami Herald said it had learned from reliable sources the ammunition was about a fourth of a shipment designed for Cuban revolutionary forces.

Robeson in U. S. For Movie Role

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Paul Robeson, Negro baritone who has made London his home since 1927, arrived today on the liner Majestic with Mrs. Robeson to play the leading role in a motion picture of "Eugene O'Neill's "Emperor Jones."

He said there has been some discussion of making the film in Haiti.

ACCUSED YOUTH TO TESTIFY IN KILLING

Ready to Take Stand In 'Tattle Tale' Death Trial

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—In a Queens courtroom today a 16-year-old schoolboy sat stolidly listening while his erstwhile playmates gave testimony on which the state is asking that he be sent to the electric chair for murder.

John Miller, 10, the state's star witness, began the recital yesterday, telling the court and jury that Harry Murch, described as "the playground bully" and "baby bandit" roped and tied 12-year-old Willie Bender and stabbed him to death because Willie had "snitched" on him.

Harry, who wears in court a new suit with short trousers, will go on the stand as star witness in his own defense as soon as the prosecution completes its case, Dana Wallace, his attorney, said.

WITNESSES TESTIFY

Witnesses today were Edward Nylund, Brooklyn carpenter, who told of finding Willie's body in a room on the second floor of an unfinished house February 15, two weeks after his disappearance. Patrolman Charles Nandt who was summoned by Nylund, and Detective Thomas R. Burger, who questioned Harry after Willie's disappearance and again after the body had been found.

"I went to school with Harry. He lived about two blocks from my house, and I saw him after school on January 31. We were at the corner butcher shop talking, and I asked him if he was going to 'take' the Bender boy. Harry said:

"Yes, I'm going to get Bender for telling it all around that I hit an old lady over the head.

"I told him I didn't want to go with him, but he said if I didn't he would do the same thing to me.

TELLS OF THREAT

"Harry said, 'Come on, let's go and get the rope and the rags.' Then he got them out of an old basket in the garage. He had a knife in his pocket, and he told me, 'This is the knife I'm going to do the job with.'"

They met Willie about half a block from home and John said the three then proceeded to an empty house, where Harry first tied him up.

"Harry told Willie to yell, and it was kind of faint. Then Harry tied him tighter and told him to yell again, and Willie tried and it was even fainter.

ROBBERS TAKE ZEBO'S PANTS

There's a new thrill and a new feature every time Stanley Zebo, manager of the Thom McAn shoe store, 814 Liberty avenue, is held up. Today the robbers took his trousers, in the third holdup in two months.

Two young white men with drawn revolvers, covered Zebo shortly after he opened the store today. Leading him to a back room, they forced him to remove his trousers.

From the pockets they got $1, and while one rolled the trousers into a ball and tucked them under his arm, the other kept Zebo covered with a gun. Then the robber with the trousers stood guard and his companion tapped the till for $3 and both fled. The trousers went with them.

On February 28, Zebo was bound and $22 stolen. On April 14 he was forced to lie on the floor while gunmen took $37 and a dozen pairs of socks.

WAR DECLARED BY PARAGUAY

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 10, (AP.)—Paraguay today formally declared war against Bolivia. The two nations have been engaged in a hitherto undeclared war in the Gran Chaco border area since last summer.

News of this action provoked great demonstrations as soon as it reached the streets.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(AP.)—Paraguay's formal declaration of war against Bolivia today gave rise to a feeling among American officials that the situation can no longer be handled by negotiations in Washington and must be taken over by the League of Nations, to which Paraguay and Bolivia belong.

Sees Parents, Schools Drive Million Insane

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—(AP.)—Due to parental discord and over-emphasis of "text-book knowledge," Dr. Kenneth E. Appel, University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, predicts that a million school children, now normal, will be at least mildly insane at some period of their lives.

Dr. Appel, who, with Dr. Earl D. Bond, has attracted wide notice for his work in combating the after-effects of sleeping sickness in children, made his prediction last night at the annual meeting of the Philadelphia County Council of Home and School Associations. He declared:

"Much of this mental instability will be due in large part to parental discord, which is all too common in the American home.

"One-sided development of a child's character also is a chief factor—the laying of too much emphasis on text-book knowledge and not enough on the development of social adaptability."

Miss America of 1933 Must Be 'Good Girl'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 10, —(INS.)—"Miss America"—1933 model—will no only be pulchritudinous and graceful, but a miss of sterling character.

That was determined today by the pageant committee reviving the national tournament of bathing beauties here after a five-year lapse.

Announcing the conditions under which 49 contestants, representing every state and the District of Columbia, will compete, the committee laid down the following qualifications:

Each entrant must be between 16 and 30 years old and never married—to eliminate widows and divorcees; she must have never participated in an Atlantic City pageant; she must be "strictly amateur"—barring stage and screen beauties; her reputation must be of the best (and the committee reserves the right to demand proof of that, if necessary, from neighbors back home), and all costumes worn must be approved in advance.

CONGRESS FAILS TO SOLVE JOB PROBLEM

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Sixty days since March 4.

No assured solution—as yet no definite proposal for the greatest of all problems written across the Washington sky.

That issue is to find jobs for the workless of this land.

It is the paramount issue.

It is more immediate, more vital than the do-it-now brave, even audacious policies of a Roosevelt, who after a Hoover prosperity-defensive, has brought in what the country wanted—a lively flexible attack.

The present extra session, so it is desired, will close about the first of June, 20 days away. We have dealt with banking, farms, currency, tariffs, mortgages, Muscle Shoals, railroads and so on.

The 13,000,000 pairs of listless feet, however, looking for jobs, upon which 30,000,000 stomachs depend, are an immediate issue larger than all the props to prosperity.

"Yes," says the Senators today.

"Yes," say the experts.

"Yes," says the administration.

May Be Catastrophe

But today while the securities bill has just passed the Senate, the issue of the unemployed is still—with only 20 days of Congress left between now and the biting cold of next January—unsolved.

Very little can be found in the literature of economics and of finance about the social issue which will face us next January.

Recuperation is a wise aim and the new administration is attending to it.

Unemployment is an economic crisis at first; then it may suddenly face us as a monster of social catastrophe too great to handle, too great now even to imagine.

What to do in these all-too-few days remaining in this session?

Who are these unemployed? We give a round number, but what jobs did they have when they had work?

The terrible answer to that question, uncovered today, is that most of them had, directly or indirectly, jobs depending not on factory work, but on construction work. We had been loaning our dollars abroad as bad risks and sometimes we got 50 cents back when they bought our goods. Thus we were buying our own prosperity at a terrible price. We went crazy about tomorrow—an expanding market we thought, the need of new plants, new construction. On with the dance.

When the crash came with its brutal truths, if we had kept every factory open nevertheless all the workers on construction would have been idle. For they were in construction work or in those industries which fed construction, from steel and concrete to wallpaper and faucets. These idle workers would still have been enough—they are enough—to be awful in their number. When all the factory gates are open, these direct and indirect construction workers will still be out of jobs.

Dole or Jobs?

Next winter do we dole them and pauperize them?

Next winter do we feed them and humiliate them?

Or do we give them jobs?

There is only one way to do the latter—public works.

In a survey taken today in both the legislative and administrative ends of Pennsylvania avenue, I have found no finished matured plan. Of course, the money to be spent must come from government bond issues or new currency, and there is no better means of getting new currency into circulation than through the hands of those who have stood a siege of want. The President so far has been able to see only around $3,000,000,000 of public works which can be undertaken with some economic justification.

Let us give him some ideas to add to useful enterprises. Put sufficient money into immediate naval construction. We need a navy. We have no navy in modern form to protect us. Flood control, for instance, on the Ohio. Let us stick to improving the United States physically—as a land. Let us be more doubtful about mere buildings and temporary structures.

On the other end of the avenue in Congress the progressives, led by Senators Cutting, of New Mexico; La Follette and Costigan, want to spend $6,000,000,000.

Could Control 'Pork'

The main difficulty in the expenditure on public works, the conservatives point out, is that as Hoover said the project would create a selfish wish to dip into the pork-barrel. So it would. But if legislation and Roosevelt cannot devise a way to stop selfish raids on our government grab-bag we may as well shut up shop as a going concern in democracy. Perhaps if unemployment and a work program puts us to the test it will be world the pain.

The unemployment problem is still written on the sky.

Capitalists are more concerned with that, though they know it not, than with any other issue that has faced this country as an emergency.

They cannot find on any accounting books or in any economic tome, statistics or a theory bearing on devastating idleness, or on nomad shuffling feet or on the stirring of violent change in our America.

Jobs for the idle may be more expensive to our government and to us taxpayers than relief doled out here and there.

If, however, we propose that America shall remain America WE CAN AFFORD TO GIVE THE JOBS.

And if Congress dropped all else today and solved the emergency job problem it would have justified its sitting and removed from this administration the possible menace of a national disaster.

What Are You Going To Do About It?

The crusade is on. A movement is under way to lead the country out of its MORAL depression and to wipe out RACKETEERING.

Youth, responding to the call of the Hearst papers, and represented by a nation-wide organization of 1,250,000 courageous young Americans, takes up in deadly earnest the cause of law and order.

Significantly, the NAME of this militant organization is the Crusaders. Fred G. Clark, its national commander-in-chief, tells what he knows about racketeering in these words:

"The liquor racketeers, gangsters and political racketeers form a minority, but they compose a hostile power that can be suppressed only by force of numbers."

FORCE OF NUMBERS—numbers of law-abiding young Americans—is what the Crusaders intend to pit against the lawlessness and the violence of the moral depression.

With one hundred and ten battalions in the country, the Crusaders intend to organize a junior division which will stand with them in "the war to annihilate the gangsters and the racketeers."

There is a place in the Crusaders movement for every good American. The senior division will be the front line. Back of them, learning the precepts of good citizenship, learning to be good citizens of tomorrow, will be the juniors.

YOU belong in this movement—if you are a good American. And the movement needs your support.

What are you going to do about it?

U. S. OPENS WAR ON BEER GANG

NEWARK, N. J., May 10.—(INS.)—Uncle Sam's campaign to drive racketeering elements out of the legal 3.2 brewing industry was brought into the open today when a hearing was begun here looking toward revocation of the permit of the Harrison Cereal Beverage Company, of Harrison, N. J., allegedly one of the Waxey Gordon plants.

Norman J. Morrison, special assistant attorney general, opened the attack against the Harrison permit, charging it had been obtained through a fraudulent concealment of the real ownership of the brewery.

He cited the double murder of Max Hassel and Max Greenberg, gangster beer kings, in whose headquarters at the Elizabeth-Carteret Hotel the Harrison plant's permit was found after the slaying.

Bombings Feared In Milk Dispute

ALBANY, N. Y., May 10.—(AP.)—Edward Gagnier, a farmer, told the state milk control board today that certain farmers in Northern New York are considering "blowing up milk stations and milk trains, and bringing in gangsters to help them do the job."

COAL MEN FIGHT RACKET STRIKE

CHICAGO, May 10.—(INS.)—Two hundred coal merchants today joined the campaign of Mayor Edward J. Kelly to smash the racketeer-inspired strike of the Chicago Coal Teamsters' Union, which has shut down 187 yards.

The employers plan resort to a lockout to combat the strike, called in an effort to force the dealers to join the trucking and transport agency.

Authorities charge that the agency, the T-N-T, is a $500,000-a-year racket of Murray Humphries, Public Enemy No. 1, who succeeded to the throne of Al Capone.

CHURCH BOMB ONLY 'SCARE'

The bomb found at the Second United Presbyterian Church, North Side, last Saturday, and blamed on racketeers, was a "scare bomb," according to City Chemist E. H. Frazier. It was non-explosive, he said today.

A flare, with little noise, would have resulted had it gone off, according to Frazier.

COPELAND ASKS SENATE QUIZ ON RACKETS

By ROYAL S. COPELAND

United State Senator from New York. Written exclusively for Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Racketeering has become a national scandal.

Surely the forces of law and order are not impotent. They can and must meet this monster which in recent years has become a serious menace to legitimate business. They must destroy that monster.

Daily the newspapers report new outbreaks or racketeering. New forms of preying upon business are constantly being found. Any other crimes are merely offshoots of racketeering.

PROPOSES INQUIRY

I have introduced in the Senate a resolution calling for a special committee to investigate the racketeering evil. It seems to me that once the facts are developed, legislation will follow. Better than that, action will follow.

Much of the racketeering is intrastate, but too much of it is interstate. Racketeering in the milk and produce industries must cross state lines.

Legislation to tighten control over sale of arms and munitions would be helpful. The government ought to be able to cut down the supply of machine guns and revolvers that gangsters and racketeers use. It is not pleasant to learn that 87 machine guns made in New York have been found in the possession of Chicago gangsters.

VOTE CHEATING

Racketeers, we are told, do not hesitate to intimidate voters at elections, so audacious has become this modern menace to society. We are familiar with the gigantic beer-rackets that held control before Congress legalized beer. There probably still is beer racketeering. Recently came a report of a Chicago brewery being bombed. No one knows where next the outlaws will strike.

It may well be that a federal statute with plenty of "teeth" would go a long way toward the destruction of this evil. There should be closer co-operation between state police forces and the federal government in meeting the problem.

Bomb Cleaning Shop, Price War Blamed

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 10.—(AP.)—A cleaning shop in an arcade in the center of the Providence business district, was wrecked and windows in three buildings across the street were shattered by a bomb early today. Nobody was injured.

Police believed the bombing was the outgrowth of a price-cutting war in the cleaning and dyeing business.

RACKET VICTIMS GET CHECKS BACK

The Better Business Bureau today returned checks aggregating about $387 to some 40 persons who contributed for Baldwin Township relief — although the township needs no relief, according to its president commissioner.

The checks—ranging in amount from $1 to $15—were seized following arrest of two men who had permission to sell advertising in a prospective year book for the township.

The men were accused of promising police protection in return for the contributions, sought for "relief" purposes instead of advertising. They were to be given a second hearing today.

Charged with violating a city ordinance forbidding solicitation of funds without a city permit are L. J. McCarthy and John Stahlman. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held them over yesterday for further investigation.

Among the checks returned today were those of funeral directors, large grocery concerns, a downtown department store, prominent society women—all typical, according to G. H. Dennison, of the bureau, of thousands of persons paying more than $1,000,000 yearly to fake charity racketeers in Pittsburgh.

Some $40 in cash has been returned to the bureau as part of the funds collected, according to Dennison who urged today that all cash contributors to the so-called relief fund apply to the bureau for return of their money.

INTERNATIONALISM NOT JOB PANACEA

By WALLACE B. DONHAM,

Dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, and One of America's Outstanding Economists.

In an address delivered at the Wharton Alumni Institute, Philadelphia; reprinted from the Harvard Business Review of April, 1933.

THIS depression is serious because the framework of society on which individual business must function rocks on its foundation. Under such conditions margins of safety always considered reasonable are entirely inadequate. The individual is powerless.

Mr. Donham

Stability can be regained only by government action. Our general direction and leadership have faltered and failed. This default of general leadership may be cured at home; it looks as though it would be. It cannot be cured by looking abroad. Leadership is impossible where understanding breaks down and control cannot be established.

I believe we must study our important social groups until we have an understanding of their several problems, and then erect by law a framework within which these social groups can develop with relative stability and on reasonably even standards of living throughout the nation.

Today the farmer, tied into the international situation and in chaotic condition at home, suffers with relations to the industrial portion of our community. As a direct repercussion, industry loses a large part of its markets and millions of people are out of work and on doles.

Our first task is to restore his buying power by isolating the farmer from international price levels and by regulating home-consumed crops. I believe this possible.

In what other ways can we attack unemployment?

Unemployment results in some small measure from loss of foreign markets, but mainly from losing as buyers our farmers, our unemployed themselves, large parts of our investing group and a great mass of people who dare not buy.

Destructive Forces

To these destructive forces we begin to see added the disturbing competition of nations with depreciated currencies, a competition which will threaten more and more what stability we retain at home, and add to our unemployment.

We should surely defend any existing industrial group against unstabilizing foreign competition. We must as soon as possible build up buying and bring about a labor shortage.

The first step should be the immediate limitation of hours of labor by Federal law so that available work spreads so far as practicable over our labor group. . . .

Having limited labor to an arbitrary number of hours estimated on present technological conditions, we should create buying power through large government projects that have a social purpose, whether or not they are self-liquidating.

We could stimulate private expenditure, as Rotary suggests, by bonuses to private capital for construction activities. Credit expansion, relatively futile in present conditions, can be expected under such conditions to serve as our great stimulant.

We should use any practicable device, public or private, that will stimulate buying. By such methods we may create, and once attained we should maintain, a steady labor shortage.

Because high wages are the condition to mass buying power, we must set in operation forces which will put labor in good bargaining position and rapidly pass on to labor its share in technological progress.

In the present collapse of purchasing power the most serious risk we face is dependence for revival of buying on the old economic forces which operated in previous depressions.

It is dangerous to assume that the forces of recovery will operate by their own momentum. This depression is qualitatively different from any which has preceded it. We face a new stage in the gradual unfolding of the industrial revolution. It requires new methods and heavily penalizes reliance on mere lapse of time. We cannot assume recurrence of the old forces of rehabilitation.

Balance Lost

Our balance is so far lost that bold measures are required to restore it. Our banking difficulties are an index of the magnitude of our departure from normal conditions. The industrial world has matured and we witness on a world scale the same phenomena of maturity which we have known for a generation in the textile and bituminous coal industries, and now see in the automobile industry.

There must be new policies and strong ones. . . .

I am not a pessimist. If we consider our home problems and work them out the progress of science puts well within our grasp a higher material civilization than ever was dreamed of—a civilization based on high general standards of material living, not on a submerged class; a material civilization which makes a great civilization possible.

But we cannot prosper with bankrupt farmers or many millions of industrial unemployed. Fifty million people cannot support seventy-five million ineffectives. Nor can we restore seventy-five million to effectiveness by international measures.

Our real problem should not be the material needs of our people, for we are fully equipped to supply these. We should be working out the vast problems involved in the intelligent integration of a society and its equipment for use of leisure at every level. We should, for the first time in the history of the world, be facing leisure as a great problem, always with the understanding that out of leisure alone can we create a great society.

I am aware that I am accused of narrow nationalism, of advocating even cultural isolation. Neither criticism is one to which I can assent . . .

Still speaking specifically of unemployment, I have no hope we can work out this problem except by isolating it at our national border, beyond which understanding and control cease.

I have tried to present in rough outline some things which should be considered in any coordinated plan for the restoration of America.

It involves no expression of opinion about policies of other nations and no thesis about their modes of procedure. Indeed, its most fundamental basis is a belief that each region or nation must work out its own policies to fit its own needs.

Whether we like it or not, the rest of the world will try to do this.

Social Federation Elects Tomorrow

Officers including eight directors will be elected tomorrow afternoon at the annual meeting of the Federation of Social Agencies, in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. More than 200 persons representing agencies in the federation will be present. Dr. E. N. Clopper, executive secretary, will speak.

IMPORTANT GAIN IN STEEL SEEN BY WEIR

steel, they are using it. Steel production at present is close to 40 per cent of capacity."

GLASS TRADE BETTER

The glass industry, one of Pittsburgh's basic employment-producers, has shown a similar pick-up, according to an official of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, who said:

"Although some of the increase may be attributed to a seasonal improvement, we are greatly encouraged by the recent results. Significant is the fact that in spite of the slump for the first quarter of the year, May and April have equaled last year."

This increase for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is exclusive of the vast improvement in the glass industry as a whole due to the manufacturing of beer glasses, it was explained, as the concern makes nothing but plate glass. A rise also has been noted in its paint business, it was stated.

PAYROLLS GROW

Many Pittsburgh banks confirm the opinion that the increased production is mirrored in larger payrolls, especially in the coal industry, which has shown a marked development in recent weeks, according to the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company.

Further advance in this industry is anticipated by its leaders, as a result of last Saturday's decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission restoring the old 10-cent differential between Pennsylvania and Ohio coal operators.

Positive employment news comes from H. F. Bucher, director of the State-Federal Employment Office here, that employment through his office has increased more than 100 per cent in the last week.

The encouraging employment picture is rounded off by the report from the Allegheny County Emergency Association that the increase in new relief cases is the lowest it has been in months. The average increase up to three months ago was about 2,000. It is now less than half that number, it was reported. In April only 824 cases were added to the list.

City to Employ 129 To Draft Improvements

A total of 129 men will be put back on the city payroll for two months as a result of the city's efforts toward forming a construction program.

Most of the men are to be hired to do engineering work in preparing plans for the $22,500,000 building program which city officials hope to start if funds can be obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

A delegation from the city and county is in Washington presenting the needs of the district to officials of the R. F. C.

City Council's Finance Committee has affirmed an ordinance employing 108 men to do the engineering work in preparation for the R. F. C. program. An appropriation of $25,000 is to be provided to pay the men.

On emergency work already authorized, 21 men will be employed. The Finance Committee has also authorized use of $300,000 out of the $2,000,000 work relief bond issue voted by the people. A number of street and sewer projects will be undertaken. The bonds are to be advertised as 20-year obligations bearing 4 per cent interest.

if they study the bookkeeping facts about post-war international trade.

THE OLD interchange, as between manufacturing England, the former workshop of the world, and vast agricultural nations, has been superseded by a new struggle for markets among more or less equal competing countries.

With surprisingly few exceptions, the old natural and necessitous barter of unique products has dried up, as MOST OF THE LEADING NATIONS OF THE WORLD HAVE BECOME INDUSTRIALIZED.

Accordingly, instead of an interchange, there is an attempt in many countries to force upon outside markets precisely the same type of products.

With the present low status of effective world demand, all the great countries are overequipped industrially, and in some respects agriculturally.

The war-time experienced raised the ambition in most lands to become economically self contained.

Japan, for example, has made amazing strides in this direction in the last decade.

WITH THE old markets partially closed, there has been increasing pressure TO SAFEGUARD AT LEAST THE HOME MARKET for domestic producers.

If there is a reversal of this policy of economic nationalism, the United States, within whose borders ONE-HALF OF THE TOTAL WORLD'S TRADE TAKES PLACE, has the most to lose.

Other nations, struggling madly for volume, would like nothing better than to be permitted to exploit the American market.

What we could gain in exports would never compensate the United States for the placing in jeopardy of home living standards by abandoning the policy of protection.

Even in the banner years of 1927-29, exports in the United States amounted to ONLY 6 PER CENT OF THE NATIONAL INCOME, whereas in certain important foreign countries, which are ballyhooing foreign trade, exports amounted to from 20 to 60 per cent of the national income.

THE SUCCESS of the domestic policies of the "new deal," including relief to agriculture, industry and to labor, hinges on SAFEGUARDING THE HOME MARKET.

Obviously, it is inconsistent to impose social advances, such as the very desirable minimum wage, on American manufacturers, if they are to be exposed to the competition of foreign manufacturers, with low labor standards.

Until all nations attain approximately equal wage rates and living standards, approaches to free trade will be fraught with the gravest dangers to the United States.

MRS. WELLES' RITES IN WEST

Funeral services for Mrs. Lucy Porter Welles, daughter of the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter, will be held in San Diego, Cal., tomorrow. The body of Mrs. Welles, who died in San Diego on April 25, will not be brought here.

Born in the old Porter home on Perrysville road, Mrs. Welles attended p[illegible]c schools here, and later St. Mary's College in New Jersey. She lived chiefly in Washington until her marriage to Radcliffe C. Welles, of the United States Navy.

Besides her husband, she leaves a son, Stefano, 5, and an uncle, Attorney L. K. Porter, who resides here.

WILKINS FIGHTS NEW BOROUGH

Residents of Wilkins Township are organizing to petition Quarter Sessions Court against the formation of a new borough to be known as Churchill in the Edgewood Country Club district.

A petition has been presented to court asking that territory amounting to about 51 per cent of the area of the township be formed into a new borough. The purpose of creating a borough is said to be an effort to get a lower tax rate.

DOGS UNDER BAN IN CORAOPOLIS

With five cases of rabies discovered within three days, a quarantine was placed on all dogs in Coraopolis by borough and state.

V. D. Johnson, dog law agent of Allegheny County, announced owners of unlicensed dogs would be prosecuted.

Five persons were bitten yesterday by County Detective Sam Riddle's airedale, Harry C. Coen, quarantine agent of the State Bureau of Animal Industry, reported. The dog was shot, and found to be suffering from rabies, Coen said.

Public Inspection Of Hospitals Urged

Public inspection of hospitals when National Hospital Day is observed Friday was being urged today by the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania.

The participation in memory of the pioneer nurse, Florence Nightingale, is stressed to acquaint every citizen with the importance of a hospital in the community. Realization is urged that while the visitor does not need the hospital today it may be a future necessity and the citizen should know how his neighbor receives necessary care.

FAT MEN AND WOMEN

Should Read This

Every Man and Woman, who is overweight and wants to reduce safely without using dangerous drugs, harsh laxatives, strenuous exercises, or severe diets should use the new reducing food called SYL-VETTE. This new system of reducing is simply a food sufficiently rich in non-fattening proteins, carbohydrates and vitamines to furnish enough nourishment to keep you from feeling hungry or weak. Just one teaspoonful of Syl-vette takes the place of breakfast or lunch and has absolutely proven the fact that by reducing the amount of food you eat each day, excess fat will soon vanish, because food and food alone creates fat. Syl-Vette is the one absolutely safe way to reduce and is guaranteed not to contain any thyroid or other harmful drugs or ingredients. 30-day treatment only $1. Ask any of these Department Stores about Syl-Vette, JOSEPH HORNE CO., ROSENBAUM CO., BOGGS & BUHL, GIMBELS or McCREERY'S.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From Germany's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.

Man! Watch your KIDNEYS

If you are over 40, give Kidneys and Bladder benefits of Santal Midy

When a man reaches his prime, kidneys and bladder frequently go back on him. Then, about 75% of the body's waste matter which must be eliminated by these organs does NOT pass out.

Doctors know the power of Santal Midy Capsules in keeping the bladder and kidneys healthy and free from irritation. Santal Midy contains a precious extract from the East Indian santalwood tree, which has been prescribed for over a hundred years in all parts of the world.

Don't let your genito-urinary organs work under a strain and a hardship. Prevent burning sensation, backaches, restless nights, frequent risings, leg pains, stiffness, heavy eyes. Get some Santal Midy from your druggist—today.

Home receptions are becoming the vogue, more and more, with our brides. Of course they must be smaller than receptions in clubs, for even the largest homes can't accommodate as many as a club. But there is always a charm, a touch of intimacy, about any affair held in a home.

Bridal Plans

A reception in the Jenkins' home after her wedding is the choice of Clara Dorothea Jenkins, daughter of the T. Clifton Jenkinses, of Morewood avenue, who'll wed Edwin M. Rhea, son of Mrs. Andrew L. Ralston, of Westminster place, June 26.

The ceremony, to take place at 5:30 o'clock, will be in the Church of the Ascension. And of course the sister of the bride-to-be, Elizabeth Jenkins, will be in the bridal party.

Elizabeth is just home, by the way, from three months in Europe. She spent most of her time in Sicily.

Spring is bringing with it a veritable downpour of spring meetings, as well as of rain. Most of these spring sessions are annual meetings at which everything is put in order for the coming season.

Spring Meets

The Volunteer Motor Service Corps of the Red Cross is planning a semi-annual meeting for Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Edgeworth Club.

This corps' members drive social workers around on their duties and do all sorts of other helpful tasks. Mrs. Edwin Coyle is acting chairman with Mrs. Benno Janssen and Miss Mary Burchfield as co-chairman.

After the meeting, Mrs. George Phelps Rose will give a tea.

Mrs. George Andrew Benney, Jr., and her children, Oliver and Edith Anne, are expected home today from Palm Beach, Fla., where the Benneys had a cottage near Mrs. Benney's mother's place there.

Mrs. Charles B. Buerger is the new president of Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Buerger and the other candidates on the nominating committee's ticket were elected yesterday at the annual meeting which brought to a close Council's thirty-ninth year. Talking pictures were shown during the counting of the ballots.

Club Hears Song Program by Mrs. Clemson

The recital given by Christine Miller Clemson at the Woman's City Club last night stamped the annual meeting and supper as an event of more than usual importance. With Earl Mitchell at the piano Mrs. Clemson sang a number of old favorites such as "Bendemeer's Stream," the little "Marie Antoinette's Song," "My Love, She's But a Lassie," "One Golden Day" and the Grant-Schaefer song, "The Sea," that was dedicated to Mrs. Clemson. A group of Negro spirituals completed the program.

Among interesting items reported during the business session was the fact that the club has acquired 90 new members during the year. The nominating committee's ticket, headed by Mrs. C. L. Peirce, Jr., as president, was elected in its entirety. The club will remain open as usual for luncheons and tea during the summer.

SHEER WOOLS FOR SPRING AND SUMMER ARE LE DERNIER CRI

THERE IS a new development in woolens this year. They are becoming lighter and lighter in weight, until some are no heavier than a voile. This means, of course, that they can be worn all summer long as dresses, if you wish, but certainly in those little coats that so many like—not for warmth, but to complete the summer frock.

THE COATS sketched show two weights of these wool fabrics; the softer, more open weave in the dressmaker coat on the right, and the firmer, slightly heavier weave in the more tailored garment on the left. Either of these is a good type to have. They are both unlined, which, by the way, is a new note, and no longer signifies "cheapness," but rather "chic." The coat on the left is in dark blue. Just the sort of thing to wear over your print dresses, whether cotton, linen, or silk, all summer long. Because the material, although light in weight, has considerable body, the little shoulder capelets have a smartly tailored stacatto effect. The detail in this coat is interesting.

THE DRESSMAKER type of coat is in eel gray, a color that is not only becoming, but easily harmonized with any number of other colors. A short cape extends across the back and instead of conventionally tying in the bow we have sketched, part of it slips around the upper part of the sleeve, forming a sort of oversleeve. It is the remainder that forms the bow.

ACCIDENTS

Your family probably proves the rule: "Accidents happen in every home!" What parent cannot relate a tale of woe from minor cuts to major injuries? • What can you do to prevent accidents? No more than use reasonable care. • Keep dangerous implements, poisons, inflammable liquids out of children's reach. Keep household remedies on hand and, above all, keep a telephone in your home to summon aid with least delay!

No item of home equipment contributes ... re to your security and happiness than the phone. You can have one in your home less than 10 cents a day!

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

HINT ANOTHER IN KIDNAPING

HARWICHPORT, Mass., May 10.—(AP.)—Chief of Police Emulous E. Hall, of Harwich, dissatisfied with the details of Margaret (Peggy) McMath's kidnaping as re-enacted by Kenneth Buck, today pursued his own investigation.

He said he had obtained from Kenneth a more "complete confession which differed in some respects from the one Buck originally made to state officials."

The chief hinted at seeking a warrant for "a man who might be connected with the plot as an accessory after the fact."

EX-U. S. DANCER ATTEMPTS LIFE

PARIS, May 10.—(INS.)—Verna Ogle, former dancer and wife of Charles Ogle, noted American photographer and artist, was in serious condition in the American Hospital today following what police called a suicide attempt.

Mrs. Ogle, who formerly lived at 720 Locust street, Phiadelphia, was once a disciple of Raymond Duncan, brother of the famous Isadora.

According to police, she attempted to commit suicide in her Montparnasse residence last night by disrobing and getting into the bathtub where she slashed her wrists.

Montana Sheep Wear Headlights

BUTTE, Mont., May 10.—(INS.)—Montana sheep were being equipped with headlights today. J. N. Gossett, Madison County sheepman, reported that he had kept coyotes and mountain lions away from his flocks by fitting a few sheep with collar-carrying flashlight batteries and small lights.

The light, Gossett said, frightened the intruders, but did not bother the sheep.

Methodist Groups To Confer Here

Eight states and 12 conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be represented by the 200 ministers who will attend social relations conference in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., May 23, 24 and 25, according to Dr. B. F. Crawford, pastor of the Perrysville M. E. Church. He is chairman of the local social service commission.

Prominent social leaders will conduct round table discussions.

'Y' Will Teach How To Stage Picnics

A class to teach school, church and club picnic committees how best to conduct outings will be inaugurated by the Y. M. C. A., it was announced today. A series of institutes will begin May 23 at the Downtown Branch, May 24 at the Allegheny Branch, May 25 at the East Liberty Branch, and May 26 at the Hill Top Branch.

WOUNDED BOY'S FATHER JAILED

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 10.—(AP.)—With his wife and son in the hospital, William Henry, 56, is in jail waiting charges of beating one and shooting the other in an effort to prevent Mrs. Henry from going to church.

Constable Clarence Bowman arrested Henry last night at the home of a brother in Somerset County.

The son, Elmer, 18, who police said interfered in the dispute between his father and mother, was shot in the arm, which had to be amputated.

Mrs. Henry was reported in critical condition at a Mount Pleasant hospital, with four broken ribs. She told police Henry stood guard over her and Elmer Sunday for several hours with a gun.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Lenore Ulric, who will be back on the Nixon stage next Monday for the first time since her appearance in "Pagan Lady," is one of the most colorful stars ever to be associated with the late David Belasco, under whose management she achieved great success. For this great stage master she did those flaming characterizations in "Tiger Rose," "Kiki" and "Lulu Belle." Her new comedy, "Hard-Boiled Angel" is by Wilson Collison, who authored "Up in Mabel's Room," among other theatrical works. It will be given at only four performances, including a matinee Wednesday, when the engagement will end with the night performance. The seat sale will open in the boxoffice tomorrow morning.

Dramatic readings by Max Montor will be given at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, admission to which is open to all without cards. Mr. Montor, who was here last in "Street Scene," will give excerpts from Shakespeare and other great dramatists, and one or two will be in German. The recital is under the sponsorship of the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation for the Development of Cultural Relations Between the United States and German-speaking Countries.

Cable States Cummings Signed

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—In the face of several conflicting statements, Hollywood was trying to puzzle out whether Constance Cummings and Columbia Pictures will forget that they were recent legal foes and resume business relations, at least for one picture.

Early in the day, a cable from London told that Connie had been signed to play opposite Leslie Howard in the film Gilbert Miller supervises abroad. The salary named, 'twas said, amounts to many times the pay-check the actress received as one of Columbia's regular players.

Miss Cummings

In contradiction of the London message, Harry Cohn declared that Miss Cummings positively will not be used in the picture.

Thus the matter stands, a bit confused and waiting explanation.

Meanwhile, Miller continues preparations to shart shooting as soon as Howard can tear himself away from Hollywood and report for work. The picture, a sophisticated comedy of the type of "Trouble in Paradise," has been spicily titled "The Lady is Willing." Jo Swerling, Columbia's story ace, did the screen treatment.

Credit Eileen Percy with one of the better wisecracks of the week. The other morning, she and the boy friend were playing a round of golf. He got caught in a sand-trap and flayed away to no avail. Eileen watched with interest. Finally she said:

"I wouldn't hit that thing any more. I believe it's dead."

At Rouben Mamoulian's party, Marlene Dietrich treated the film colony to the latest thing in masculinized dinner gowns. It was a severely cut black silk with a black jacket. At her throat, La Dietrich wore an oversized white bow tie.

The star tells me she will try to slip out of Los Angeles and that she will carry her guards to the very gangplank of the ship.

"After that," she said, "I won't need them."

Then, showing she has learned something of American superstitions, Marlene leaned over and rapped a wooden table top with her knuckles.

Together again at the Mamoulian party, Sandra Shaw and Gary Cooper drew speculative glances. This time, the casual Gary seems to be really interested.

Renee Adoree has recuperated from her attack of influenza and is feeling fine. She's living in Tujunga . . . Friends of Marie Dressler also are very pleased with her improved health. Before that recent vacation, Marie used to work only from 10:30 a. m. until 1 p. m. Now she puts in a six-hour day, from 9 to 3 . . . The Thalbergs plan to return here about the middle of June. Charles MacArthur has joined them in Germany and he and Irving are working on several stories.

Hoot Is High To Sally

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—(AP.)—When Sally Eilers left for Europe (for the first time) she was accompanied only by her secretary. What! No Hoot?

Yes, no Hoot. Husband Hoot Gibson—whom Sally terms her "best friend"—stayed home.

"Honestly, I meant it when I say Hoot is my best friend," said Sally. "We're separated, and for good, I guess, but I still like to have 'dates' with him. Hoot's more interesting than any other man I know, and I'd a lot rather go places with him than with someone else and be bored to tears."

The Good Samaritan.

THERE LIVES, in this strange town, a doctor who is by way of being one of the world's most charitable men. I don't mean that he gives away thousands of dollars to different charities in order to see his name in the papers. I don't consider that charity, and neither does he. The man who goes in for that sort of thing is doing nothing but inserting a paid advertisement.

This doctor—let's make him Dr. L. in this story—has been helping other people in different ways for more years than he likes to admit. A twenty here. A hundred there. The best professional work for those who could not afford to pay. And, occasionally, when the case was deserving enough, a hospital room and a nurse for the patient with all bills paid by Dr. L.

There aren't many men like him. As a matter of fact, I can't think of another chap in my Broadway career who has done the splendid things that this doctor has. I've met many charitable men, of course. But none who has pursued the course as long and as faithfully as he has.

Well, what happens to a man such as that? The world being what it is, he has been taken advantage of time and time again.

After office hours, Dr. L.'s home has always been open house for those who cared to drop in. The man who was thirsty could always find a drink; the girl who was penniless could always depend upon a five spot. The doctor never turned anyone away.

As a result—and only because of the medico's overwhelming generosity—his home has always been filled with characters of every description. It was nothing for him to give one of his house keys to a starving songwriter who was to live there "until things got better." And it was nothing for the songwriter to turn the key over to someone else when he departed. That the doctor had never met the "someone else" meant nothing at all.

Accordingly, under such a peculiar system, peculiar things have happened. There have been nights when the doctor, exhausted after a difficult examination, returned to his home to find all of his rooms occupied—including his own. In one room a couple of homeless chorines. In another, a journalist whose wife had tossed him out. And so on. The doctor never complained. He took a room for the night in a hotel across the street.

You will tell me, perhaps, that such a character is dizzy. I will admit that it sounds that way, but I can assure you that such is not the case. The man is such a sweet soul and he wants so much to help others that he never considers himself.

I told you there weren't many like him. . .

The depression hit all doctors a sock in the nose, and Dr. L. was no exception. He owned quite a few stocks—and, after going that far with the sentence, you can complete it yourself. He lost much of the money he had saved through the years, and his fees grew increasingly fewer. He wasn't what you would call broke, but the situation was far from what it had once been.

On the other hand, the demands on his generosity became heavier. As more and more of his friends went broke, they turned to the medico for assistance. If his home had been crowded with parasites in days gone by, it was now literally jammed with them. They came for food, for shelter, for drink, and for weeks.

One evening, some six or seven months ago, Dr. L. returned to his apartment with a friends he had known for years. As usual, the place held a number of people, who were standing around mixing drinks. They greeted the doctor heartily as he walked to his own room with his friend. They expected, of course, the usual evening meal.

When they reached the doctor's rooom, the friend closed the door and opened up on the medico. He called him a fool and told him he should stop supporting the mugs who were only using him for a sucker. He called a spade a couple of spades and urged the doctor to throw out the whole gang.

After a pause, the dostor nodded.

"I've been thinking about that for some time," he replied. "Things are not what they once were, and I've got to cut down. But I've got to do it gradually. You don't understand that these people are really broke and that they need the drinks and meals I give them. If I stopped everything all at once, I don't know what would happen.

"You mustn't be too hard on them. To you, on the outside, I may appear to be a sucker. But they don't feel that way. They appreciate what I do.

"In my own interests, however, I am positively going to cut down. Not tomorrow, but right now. I'm going outside and tell them that I'm having dinner with you, and that they're no longer wanted and they'll gradually disappear. I feel sorry for them, but what can I do?"

A few minutes later, with his friend already outside the apartment, Dr. L. informed the hangers-on that there would be no dinner that night. Twenty faces fell, and the doctor turned to leave the room.

But he was not to escape that easily. Before he had taken two steps, one man pulled him aside.

"Doc," said the man earnestly, "I'm flat broke. Haven't eaten in two days. I hate to do this, but could you lend me five for a few days? You will? Say, that's swell. Thanks very, very much."

Another two steps and another friend caught him. It was practically the same story, only this fellow hadn't eaten for three days. Could the doctor let him have just a few dollars so that he might fill his stomach? He could? Say, that was wonderful of him!

At the door a third man caught him and asked for another five. Once more the doctor dug down and—for the third time—he handed out $5. Then he stepped outside and joined his friend. He mopped his brow.

"It's awful, Louis," he muttered. "Simply awful. The world shouldn't be so unkind to people. Men who once had so very much now have so very little. And how they appreciate the little I can do for them!"

His friend tossed him a look, and then walked on. . . .

They hadn't gone two blocks when Dr. L. suddenly snapped his fingers.

"Just thought of something," he cried. "I left some very important papers in my room when I changed my coat. I'd better go back and get them now because somebody may be sleeping there later and I hate to disturb people. You wait here. I'll race right back."

The medico hastened back to his apartment and walked to his room. He opened his door, and then stepped back in amazement. The three men who had borrowed the three fives from him just before he left, were shooting craps for the money! . . .

B'NAI ISRAEL TO HOLD FETE

A decade of service by the B'Nai Israel congregation will be celebrated by a three-day program of events, beginning tomorrow night. The celebration marks the tenth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone for the synagogue.

The Sisterhood, the Men's Club, the Hebrew School, and the religious school will unite in presenting a pageant, "The Voice of Israel."

Friday Rabbi Benjamin Lichter, with the assistance of guest rabbis from other local congregations, will conduct special services in the synagogue. The Rev. Julius Bloom, cantor, will render several vocal solos.

Sunday night Judge Benjamin Lencher will be the guest speaker at a concluding banquet. Miss Edith Canter Lazear will sing. A dance will follow.

Doug Seldom Stays Put

HOLLYWOOD, May 10.—(AP.)—Men can bite dogs all they please, but when Douglas Fairbanks arrives in Hollywood and actually stays "put," that will be news.

There's a story he has been considering nearly three years, and it must be made in China. That is why he'll hardly be back here from his European visit before, if plans materialize, he will be off again with a movie troupe for the Orient.

Mary Pickford, meanwhile, is tackling her usual problem—a suitable vehicle. The animated "Alice in Wonderland," with Mary as the one human character in a paradise of Walt Disney cartoons, is but a possibility for the future.

SCHOOL CRISIS STUDY SET

Studies of the effect of the depression on education and remedial measures will be laid before a conference of educational leaders in New York Friday night and Saturday.

Pennsylvania educators will attend the meeting, sponsored by Teachers' College, Columbia University, at the college. Dean William F. Russell, of Teachers' College, said a "challenge" is presented by the present economic crisis to the schools, and that a major purpose of the conference is to work toward an improved social order.

HITLER PROTEST -:- Educators Denounce Burning of Books -:- ON AIR TONIGHT

Jones-Hare In Mystery Broadcast

A 35-minute broadcast from a Carnegie Music Hall meeting of prominent Pittsburgh educators protesting Hitler's burning of Jewish-authored books is scheduled over WWSW at 8:25.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, of the Carnegie Institute of Technology; Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh; the Rev. J. J. Callahan, of Duquesne University, and Samuel Harden Church are to address the meeting.

Shrouded in mystery have been Billy Jones' and Ernie Hare's preparations for a new program they plan to introduce via NBC-KDKA at 8:30 p. m. Because they've sealed their lips as to their plans and rehearsed behind locked doors, the program, subject of much studio speculation, remains a deep, dark secret until the half-hour strikes tonight.

Brahms Program

Josef Lhevinne, concluding his weekly recital series, plays an all-Brahms program on WCAE at 9:30 in honor of the centennial anniversary of the composer's birth. Beginning next week, the Wednesday night period will feature Mischa Levitzki, pianist, who has just ended a two-month concert tour of Europe.

A special arrangement for string orchestra of Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 4 marks the KDKA-at-7:30 concert by Frank Black's String Symphony. Also included on the program are Sibelius' Romance in C, a Bach choral and a group of Henry Purcell compositions.

"The Hall of Science," a dramatization of the story of radio, including the discoveries of Hertz and Marconi, is listed for KDKA dialers at 10:30. The presentation is one of the Century of Progress Eposition series.

* * *

The second and third acts of Planquette's romantic comedy operetta, "Chimes of Normandy," the first act of which was given during the same period last week, are presented by Channon Collinge's "Light Opera Gems" company via CBS-WJAS at 10:45 p. m. Theo Karle, Rhoda Arnold, Crane Calder and Evan Evans have the principal roles.

Junior Patrol Goes On Air Today

A varied program by a group of juvenile Pittsburgh entertainers drawn from the ranks of the Junior Patrol, headed by Quin Hall, Sun-Telegraph cartoonist; Junior, Snuggins and Spike, is presented on WCAE at 4:45 today.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast daily over WCAE and WJAS at 9:30 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Mermaid Champ With Seals

Lenore Kight, of Homestead, holder of three national swimming titles and several world records, and Anna Mae Gorman, her teammate, come to the WCAE microphone as guests of the Trained Seals tonight at 7 o'clock.

By AIRCASTER

That point in the future when the villains in radio dramas—and even the clowns—all shall bear the names of Smith, Jones and even Brown, seems not to be very distant.

No other names seem to satisfy a thin-skinned audience.

Among the first to draw complaint from the audience were the mad Marx brothers who started their radio career under the descriptive name of "Shyster, Beagle and Shyster." The chief complaint came from a lawyer named Beagle, who threatened to sue, prosecute and convict. So, after a week of basking in the S. B. & S. title, the Marxmen changed it to "Flywheel, Shyster and Flywheel."

A similar situation has confronted Louis Joseph Vance, who authored the Sunday serial, "The Case of Jane Doe."

Nobody has objected to Jane's handle, but the fact that the suave, gentlemanly villain drew the name of Dred November, has brought trouble. A Brooklyn resident has threatened injunction proceedings unless some other name than November is used for a gent who deals in skullduggery. The Brooklyn man's name is November.

Mr. Vance and his producers quickly went into a huddle and came out of it with Dred December as the bad man's name, but the agency authorities figured they had better let the calendar alone, so they compromised and the arch-criminal's name is "Dred Nocember."

Elsie Hitz, the habitual heroine of the CBS dramas, returns to studios after a protracted illness from scarlet fever.

The Boswell sisters have about decided to desert America temporarily for a month in London, leaving about May 20.

Frank Black reports an unusual influx of foreign songs and other compositions for American radio, the new and borrowed numbers coming up with a rapidity equal to that of Tin Pan Alley's output.

Rudy Vallee takes over his old spot personal appearances and radio schedules in that New York hotel on June 1.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Lee and Leona Bruce, twins, of Mars, Pa., have an enviable school attendance record. Despite the fact that for six years it was necessary to walk to the Downieville School, a mile and a half from their home, they have not been late or absent once in seven years.

Did you clip the "coo-pon?" Rose Mulligan of McKeesport did, and now she wonders where her Zinnia seeds are. Her's and many others are in transit now.

J. F. Maxwell and others who wish they clipped but didn't will have another chance next Sunday.

A worried listener from Commodore reports that the young 'dickenses" of the town have developed a fad for sling shots and their accuracy is uncanny. It's all very commendable except the targets are the birds. I'm sure that these are not bad boys, just full of energy, somewhat misdirected. Since school doesn't close until May 16, perhaps the teachers will ask the boys to get their entertainment some other way.

Dear Mrs. Brookensee, Mt. Washington: I hadn't the slightest idea that any one was being "slammed," least of all Mr. Hoover, when I reported the feeling of closeness and thoughtfulness inspired by Mr. Roosevelt's opening remark of "Good evening, my friends" instead of the usual beginning of "Friends and Citizens of the United States."

Others might have the same feeling. That's why I print this. Please keep listening.

Eva Potts, 16-year-old Wellsville, O., school girl is getting herself quite a reputation as a cartoonist.

Mrs. Elsie M. Ferry, Pitcairn, possesses a rare map of Pennsylvania printed in 1832, formerly owned by Alexander Coulter, of Greensburg.

All Weather Super-Twist Cord Tires $5.85 up

Pathfinder Super-Twist Cord Tires $4.65 and up

Tires Mounted Free

Remember—A New Tire Deserves A New Tube!

● Right now Goodyear is concentrating on two main lines of tires.

This saves money for the factory that builds them—for the dealer who sells them—and for the car owner who buys them.

If you want to know how real these savings are—and how much they mean to you—just check up on today's price of the size you need, and at the same time take a careful look at the finest quality that ever honored the Goodyear name.

This stepping up of quality, this stepping down of price leads the way to a better deal for everyone—and that's what we all want now.

Best of all—it means that everyone can afford new Goodyear Tires, especially if you buy now while prices are still low.

Pattern 2361

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

If your figure is larger than average and you find it very difficult to obtain smartness and a perfect fit . . . sew your own frocks and the problem will be solved successfully. Only then can you choose those lines and details that best become you. This model is perfect for the matron as its deep cape hides a full bust, and the snug hip yoke joining the skirt in pointed seaming is slimming. An exquisite sheer, printed or monotone, would be charming for afternoons.

Pattern 2361 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

SEND FOR THE ANNE ADAMS FASHION BOOK, showing Paris-inspired models for every sewing need — all practical and easy and economical to make. Models for the larger figure, junior and kiddie styles; lingerie and accessory patterns are also featured. PRICE OF CATALOG, FIFEEN CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS. 2 DOCTORS HELD IN 'MAGIC CURE' FATALITY

BALTIMORE, May 10.—(AP.)—Two doctors of Washington and vicinity were blamed for "criminal conduct, gross malpractice and brutal treatment" by a Coroner's jury following its inquest into the death of Mrs. Cora Britton, of Mays Landing, N. J.

The jury named the two as Dr. H. R. Street, of Washington, and Dr. Sherwood Ferris, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. Britton died last Thursday in a Baltimore hospital where she was admitted on April 2 with a severe injury to her breast. She was taken to the hospital, according to witnesses at the inquest, from Dr. Ferris' home where she had been under treatment for nine weeks for an alleged cancer.

Witnesses said the treatment was application of a dark-brown salve asserted to contain 10 per cent of "a very strong corrosive that destroys chemically as well as mechanically."

Dr. Roland L. Britton, husband of the woman, told the jury the condition of his wife previous to her visiting the two doctors.

He said Mrs. Britton had complained for a year, but X-rays showed "no involvement of the deep tissue."

Hearing of the "magic remedy" of Dr. Street, Mrs. Britton, he continued, wanted to visit him, so he accompanied her to Washington. He said she ignored his warnings that "they were only a bunch of quacks, just fakes."

RAYMOND THOMAS

YOUTH FACES DEATH QUIZ

Bernard Walthour, 17, of Collier avenue, Heidelberg, was turned over to Juvenile Court in the custody of Attorney Lois McBride today pending further questioning tomorrow in connection with the fatal shooting of Raymond Thomas, 9, a neighbor, in the Walthour home last night.

He was questioned at length today by county detectives and was disposed to be reticent when the Coroner quizzed him.

Lodged in the Carnegie Police Station after the shooting by Constable C. P. Altmeyer, Walthour told Lieut. Harry Keisling and County Detective Robert McMillen the shooting was accidental. Raymond, a third-grade pupil of the Heidelberg School had taken a shotgun from the kitchen door during his visit, Walthour related to the police.

Walthour continued:

"I took the gun from Raymond. The gun was discharged when I attempted to unload it."

The charge struck Raymond in the head.

Walthour's mother is in Mercy Hospital and he was preparing the evening meal when the tragedy occurred. Two other Walthour children, James, 14, and Charlotte, 3, in the kitchen at the time, were uninjured.

PRIEST MAKES BREAD PLEA

Father Cox needs bread for his distitute families and asks the Sun-Telegraph to make an appeal to the housewives of Pittsburgh for daily donations.

There was a time when he received large supplies from the big bakeries but, in line with all other industries, the bakers have trimmed their output the actual demand of buyers. As a result there is but little left over and Father Cox gets considerable of this. There has, however, been days during the last few weeks when he has not had enough loaves of bread to feed his breadline and he believes that many housewives, knowing these conditions, will gladly bake a "batch" for him once a week. Telephone the Parish House of Old St. Patrick's, Grant 4300, when the bread is ready for delivery and Father Cox will send for it.

Next Saturday night Father Cox is leading a pilgrimage to the Shrine of the Little Flower at Father Coughlin's church, Royal Oak, Mich. The pilgrimage will attend this famous radio priest's services in the morning, go sightseeing in Detroit in the afternoon and evening and be back in Pittsburgh Monday morning.

Father Cox has a special rate for the pilgrimage—$11.00 for the round trip all expenses paid, including three meals at the Book-Cadillac Hotel. There is a profit in this rate which goes to his unemployment relief fund.

Father Cox had another successful day yesterday in his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

DR. MACARTNEY SEES CRISIS

PHILADELPHIA, May 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney, former moderator of the General Assembly, and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church Pittsburgh, said yesterday "all the signs of the times indicate that the Protestant churches are rapidly approaching a critical change and a possible division."

Speaking at the commencement exercises of Westminster Theological Seminary, he declared:

"Within even the credal and doctrinal churches of Protestantism, such as the Presbyterian body, there are groups holding interpretations of Christianity and the Scriptures which are hostile and irreconcilable.

"This preposterous union and fellowship cannot continue forever."

SON INHERITS LARGE ESTATE

Mrs. Rachel Lewis Elliott, of Webster Hall, who died recently in West Penn Hospital, left an estate valued at $430,000 by her will, probated yesterday.

Giving $1,000 each to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church and the Board of National Mission of that church, she left the residue to her son, George L. Elliott, of Webster Hall. All of the estate is in personal property.

JOBLESS TARS BATTLE POLICE

NEW YORK, May 10.—(INS.)—Rioting Communists and unemployed seamen, swinging fists and knives, held police at bay behind a barricade at the Seamen's House today.

Demanding food and clothing, shouting threats against the attendants, 200 men, white and Negro, marched on the building and took possession.

Six radio cars and an emergency police squad were sent. The interior of the building was a bedlam of screaming, milling men who defied the police to enter.

Battering down a door, the police brought the mob under control with nightsticks. Four were taken to St. Vincent's Hospital and 47 others arrested.

The Seamen's House is a hermitage for unemployed seamen maintained by several charitable institutions.

'CHICAGO ANNIE' WON'T MOURN 'PHONY KID'

'Dirty Double Crosser' Epitaph of Noted Thief Once Drug Clerk Here

"Chicago Annie's" last words for "The Phony Kid" were:

"The dirty double crosser."

That left only a Pittsburgh businessman to speak a kind word for the man who started out as a drug clerk here, became an internationally known crook, and died last week by his own hand.

"Chicago Annie" was "The Phony Kid's" last alliance with the world of crime that he hoped to forsake for a respectable career in Pittsburgh—at least, so he said on a visit here three weeks ago.

The woman wept maudlin tears as she talked with Detective Chief William Schoemaker, of Chicago, of "Jack Reedy, poor fellow," the name by which she knew "The Phony Kid." She mourned the days when crime had a code of honor and police matched wits instead of pistols with the underworld.

Then she told that "Reedy" had planned one last coup with her a few weeks ago, explaining she was to be the "front" in a jewelry palming game, and added:

"But poor Reedy must have lost his grip, because when we left the place, he said he didn't get a thing. Poor fellow."

FIND GEMS IN ROOM

Schoemaker told her "The Phony Kid" must have got something—they found $2,500 of jewelry in his room after he shot himself.

That was too much for Annie's friendship. She exclaimed those bitter words:

"The dirty double-crosser!"

But for all "The Phony Kid's" wrongdoing, he still had the sympathies of Edward Kapphan, of Pittsburgh, a friend of his respectable days, who long had sought to set "The Phony Kid" on the right path.

Three weeks ago he visited Kapphan. He said he would like to promote "a Madison Square Garden" for Pittsburgh and go straight. Kapphan hoped at last his efforts at reform had succeeded.

A KING'S PARDON

"The Phony Kid" went back to Chicago and killed himself two weeks later.

Kapphan said "The Phony Kid's" real name was Hunter Feuster. He was a clerk in the old Christy drug store, Fourth avenue and Smithfield street.

Police in America and Europe knew him also as "Dr. Henry Clayton." He had crossed the Atlantic 70 times, and was credited with being the only crook ever to win a pardon from King George, of England.

GOSLIN CALLED BEER SELLER

Thomas (Goose) Goslin, indicted in the raid on the Monaca Club, and one-time reputed numbers baron, enjoys beer-selling privileges, according to testimony in South Side Police Court today.

Carl Riebel, 31, arraigned on a disorderly conduct charge, told Magistrate J. J. Sweeney he ran a beer saloon at South Twenty-seventh and Jane streets.

Asked where he obtained his beer, Riebel replied.

"From 'Goose' Goslin."

Riebel and John Fuchs, 24, of 2611 Jane street, were arrested last night after they had opened a fire plug near Riebel's place, police testified. They said they were preparing to clean the street. Both were discharged.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, May 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Senate wasn't in session yesterday so the country got a break. Everybody down here feeling mighty fine since the President's speech. Talked to a lot of what used to be old line Republicans, and they are the most rabid Democrats we got now. You know I don't believe there is a thing this man Roose velt couldn't put over if he was a mind to. He is so strong with the people, and so convincing over the radio, that if he ever got in a fight with Congress, all he would have to do is take it to the people, via the air, and he would lick any of 'em. Yours, WILL.

Kings and Beauties Evelyn's Paris Fare— Before Storm Broke

SYNOPSIS

In previous installments Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has described the persistent and ardent wooing of Harry K. Thaw and of her great love for Stanford White. She has told how Thaw enabled her to realize a lifelong ambition to see Paris, where for the first time she noticed Thaw's eccentricities and fits of temper.

By EVELYN NESBIT THAW
(Copyright.)

CHAPTER VI.

Paris was entrancing. I was getting such a kick out of simply being there. And, again, you must remember that in early youth troubles and annoyances slide off one's back as water off the proverbial duck's.

I simply sat back and let Thaw rave when he had one of his "fits." Then he would suddenly smile sweetly, drop on one knee before me, kiss my hands and say:

"I'm sorry, Boofuls," his face breaking into that sudden childlike, disarming grin as he would say:

"Her so booful. Please forgive."

Every now and then Thaw would disappear for a few days. That never bothered me. Naturally, I wasn't the least bit in love with him and these disappearances meant nothing to me. It never occurred to me that they might have had some special significance.

Thaw's Apartments

During the exposures of the first Thaw trial I learned that Thaw at this time and at others, maintained different apartments in Paris. His secret life necessitated this. If I had been in love with Thaw, I might have learned something, perhaps enough to warn me, because nothing escapes a jealous woman. In fact, there is no detective to equal a jealous female. Nothing seems to escape her eternal vigilance. But I didn't care what Thaw did, really, as long as he behaved himself around me.

Clothes, which are as necessary as food to a girl in Paris, I had in profusion. Harry Thaw had taken me to Doucet, in the Rue de la Paix, and some other shops where I was outfitted properly.

Another significant fact which failed to register with me were those long periods when Thaw would sit, biting his nails and staring into space. I know now that at those times he was plotting, scheming and planning.

At that time one of his main desires was to separate my mother and myself, although neither one of us was aware of the fact. He did all he could to encourage quarrels between us; did everything possible to annoy my mother and make her life miserable.

Kings, Dukes, Beauties

Every Sunday we went to the races at Autueil or Longchamps or sometimes at Maison LaFitte. There I saw the great celebrities of the day, kings, Russian grand dukes, great professional beauties such as Lina Cavalieri, then considered the most beautiful woman in Europe; the Aga Khan and other Oriental potentates; millionaires from our own U. S. A. and South America.

We were in Paris but a short time when Harry Thaw proposed marriage. I told him I was sorry, but I didn't think I would ever marry. During the first Thaw trial when this matter came up, many a cynical eyebrow was raised and many persons said:

"Like heck! She refused to marry him! She must have jumped at the chance!"

Believe me, I didn't. Again, let me say without bragging, I had refused a half dozen infinitely better proposals of marriage in New York. Of course, most people believe any girl who has been on the stage, especially in the chorus of a musical comedy, has one object in life and that is to marry a millionaire. Maybe so, but I had a complex against marriage; simply had no desire to marry anybody—for love or money.

One American multi-millionaire used to send me carloads of American beauty roses, always with the same note:

"American beauties to an

Nothing to Worry Us Now Except Debt and Tariff

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Now, we have nothing to think about but debts and tariff. You can check little problems like those with your hat.

There is some talk of reducing armaments, but it is on a sustaining hour. They haven't got a commercial program for that yet.

Here's the way the international goods problem figures out:

"What have you got that we want and cannot do without?"

"What have we got that we don't want and you don't want either?"

From then on it is a case of fair exchange is no robbery. It's no bargain, either.

Evelyn and Her Shakespeare School Classmates

KILLER AND PAL HUNTED AT HIDEOUTS

Pair Held for Court For Assisting Fugitives

While police watched hospitals and possible hideouts for two Maug gangsters, their companions in escape from Western Penitentiary were given added prison terms in a heavily guarded courtroom today.

With door bolted and armed guards surrounding them, Frederick Prince, 35, and Theodore Geisler, 23, captured soon after they slid down a rope from the penitentiary to freedom, pleaded guilty of escape before Judge S. H. Gardner. They were sentenced to additional terms of from three to six years each.

Prince was serving 15 to 30 years, Geisler, 20 to 40 years on robbery charges. The maximum penalty for escape is double the original sentence.

THEFT CHARGE DROPPED

The two refused to plead guilty to charges of stealing an automobile in which they were trying to flee the city when captured. Judge Gardner quashed the charges.

Attorney Van A. Barrickman, representing Prince, told the court Prince's motive was to see his mother dying in Cleveland and that he "intended to return to prison." Prince and Geisler were not the "brains" of the escape he said.

Meanwhile, police were ordered to keep close watch on all hospitals for the two convicts still at liberty, John Maug and Edward Turpack.

Belief that one of the two was wounded early yesterday in fleeing from police fire after being trapped in an abandoned stone quarry near West Homestead, was strengthened today.

HOSPITAL MYSTERY

A man with his hat pulled down to conceal his face asked an orderly at Homestead Hospital to come out to his machine to "see a sick man." When the orderly told him to bring the man into the hospital he returned to the automobile and drove away.

Two men arrested late yesterday charged with leading Maug and Turpack to the chicken-coop hideout on a Baldwin Township farm which they occupied for three days, were held over in Central Police Court today.

They are Clyde Kerns, 29, of Hays Glen street, former policeman, and Walter Swisher, 29, of Glass Run road.

TELLS OF THREATS

Kerns said:

"They put a rod on our backs and made us do everything they said to do."

Swisher said he was afraid o the gangster-killers.

Police investigated a tip that Maug and Turpack were seen in Hazel Inn, 102 Hazelwood avenue shortly before last midnight.

Jack Dooley told detectives a friend of his, who knew Maug recognized the escaped convict and spoke to him but did not receive a reply. The two men left by a rear door and sped away in an automobile. The man believed to be Maug was described as nervous and almost exhausted

MINOR DIVORCE PLEAS RAPPED

Mrs. Dorothy Price Herron, 34, of South Linden avenue, told Judge Frank P. Patterson yesterday that her husband, R. James Herron, left her in 1930. The judge remarked:

He asserted mere dissatisfaction with married life is not sufficient.

Mrs. Herron said she and her husband had frequent arguments over financial matters. She declared she was at work in her kitchen when her husband left and she didn't learn of his absence for some time.

Good Entertainer And Always Gay, Teacher Says

The prettiest, best dressed, and brightest girl in her class, her classmates remembered today as Evelyn Florence Nesbit, who later married Harry K. Thaw.

Naturally, she was popular with the boys of the class, and just as naturally, she was not quite so popular with the girls. At 14, there were several very young men who gave her a "rush."

But she never completed that seventh grade. With her mother, she went to New York to become a model, and even today some of her classmates remember her as they last saw her, a slender elfin slip of a girl with mischievous dark eyes and lustrous dark hair.

Always gay, full of pep, one of the teachers in Shakespeare school then, Miss Anna Laferty, remembers, she was always in demand for entertaining. She could sing beautifully, dance gracefully, and play the piano well.

At Friday afternoon dances in the school, she played the piano for the others when she wasn't dancing herself.

She could draw well, too. Her caricatures and sketches of classmates and teachers were excellent, they say.

Her clothes, however, were the chief cause for envy by the girls and for admiration by the boys. She dressed in the latest fashions.

In the cloakroom, one high fling of her pointed toe would neatly remove a cap from its hook on the wall, and these high kicks were one of her favorite "mischiefs."

Today, not all of her classmates are to be found, although most of them live in Pittsburgh. Several still live in the Shakespeare School district in the East End, near the house at 220 South Highland avenue, where Evelyn Nesbit's mother conducted a boarding house while she lived in Pittsburgh. Most of the girls in the class are married now, and most of the boys have been moderately successful businessmen.

'ROCK DUST JOHNNY' SAFETY PIONEER

Veteran Mine Man Led Fight on Explosions

"Rock Dust Johnny" is the affectionate name applied to John E. Jones. Delegates to the coal division convention, American Mining Congress, at the Hotel William Penn, will tell you his career has been as colorful as the term implies.

Mr. Jones is attending the convention as a representative from the Old Ben Coal Corporation of Illinois of which he has been safety engineer for 17 years. It was in the early days of that period the "Rock Dust Johnny's" name originated as he led a nation-wide fight with other leaders for rock dusting as an important safety factor in mining.

"Rock Dust," his old associates tell, knew the early mine dangers. He started as a mule driver when only 13 years old and he was a miner for 15 years. His first practical application of rock dusting was made in 1912. Jones advocated it for general use of the industry. The second application was made in 1917 when one of the mines of the Old Ben firm suffered an explosion taking 17 lives. Rock dusting was then adopted by his company. Through his efforts, assisted by the United States Buerau of Mines, the company developed barriers and troughs and an electrivally-driven rock dusting machine to coat the mine roof, ribs and floor that became the model of the industry.

And during those busy years of preaching rock dusting, Jones prepared himself through correspondence school courses to enter the Valparaiso University, where he graduated in civil engineering.

ORPHAN'S HOME IN 100TH YEAR

The oldest institution for child care in the state the Protestant Orphan Asylum, Perrysville avenue, today had entered its one hundredth year.

A reception for friends and former children of the home was held yesterday. Playlets by inmates marked the program, which included addresses by visiting ministers and Miss Eleanor McC. Chalfant, retiring president.

Mrs. W. E. McKelvey is the newly-elected president of the board.

Many children sheltered in the home have later achieved prominence, among them the late John G. A. Leshman, who served as minister to Turkey and ambassador to Germany.

Sues for $5,000, Awarded 61-4 Cents

Mrs. Mathilda Kappel, West Park, McKees Rocks, won her damage suit against Lorenz Mitterer, whom she charged with making slanderous remarks about her, but only received a verdict of 6¼ cents. The jury returned a verdict for that amount in Common Pleas Court late yesterday. The case was tried before Judge James H. Gray. The plaintiff and defendant were neighbors. Mrs. Kappel had sued for $5,000 damages for slander.

Fired County Employe Assails McGovern

Representative Joseph A. Rectenwald today blamed County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern for his dismissal from his $125-a-month job in the Tax Revision Board office and added "he was the only one in Allegheny County to suffer for being in favor of economy."

He went to see McGovern, he said, and heard 12 reasons why he was fired. Rectenwald said:

"The 12 reasons were 12 bills that I didn't know anything about."

McGovern, Rectenwald said, fired him because he failed to vote against the Turner economy bill, as he had been instructed by George Meyers, chairman of the Tax Revision Board. He said:

"Meyers called me up and told me to vote against the Turner bill, but I have always been in favor of economy and I voted the way I felt. It seems that I am the only one to suffer in Allegheny County for being in favor of economy."

Prior to the firing of Rectenwald, he was notified his salary would be discontinued while he was serving in the Legislature, State Senator William D. Mansfield, who is also a member of the Board of County Commissioners, and Representative James H. McClure, of Glassport, who is an Assistant County Solicitor, were exempted.

Rectenwald said:

"When these gentlemen were kept on the ...ty payroll while they we... ...rrisburg I naturally thought they were looking after county legislation. I was for anything that McClure was even if I didn't get paid."

JUDGES INVITED TO CONFER ON WARD ABUSE

An invitation to County Court Judges to meet with the County Commissioners to discuss the recent reported mistreatment of juvenile wards in foster homes, was to be sent to the jurists today.

Judge Kennedy said the report received by him contained general statements and did not deal with specific cases. Commissioner C. M. Barr declared that although the reports were voluminous, the contents should be made available to Judge Kennedy and his associates. Barr's suggestion for a conference was approved.

BLAMES SUPERVISORS

Commissioner McGovern remarked that he was tired of conferences, as they got nowhere. He said:

"Why should the judges of County Court concern themselves about this? They act as if we are charging them with the responsibility for all things reported. It's not their fault. It's as much our business to look after these wards as it is theirs.

"Their court is not set up to handle the ward business right. It should be arranged so someone could be placed in charge to see that those kids are treated right and that the county is not imposed upon.

"The whole thing is that these supervisors or guardians don't do their stuff. It is the small neglected cases that cause the entire lot to look bad. I have seen enough, however, to be convinced that something is wrong and needs mending."

BARR FAVORS CHANGE

Barr said he believed the court responsible for existing conditions. He voiced the belief that the home finding system should give way to a central cottage plan.

McGovern declared that the investigation would be continued. He said he hoped the next report would make recommendations to improve the system.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said:

"There is a bill now waiting for the Governor to sign, and he will sign it, which will establish a separate Juvenile Court here January 1, with a judge who will devote his entire time to looking after this sort of thing. This judge will have absolute say as to the appointment of his probation officers and juvenile visitation staff."

McGovern then suggested that the investigation be continued until the new judge was named so the Commissioners could give him the data.

Barr insisted that the present judges be given all available information. Mansfield joined him in moving that a conference be held. It probably will take place late this week or early next.

Principal to Talk At P. T. A. Meeting

J. Foster Gehrett, principal of the Morningside School, will speak tomorrow night in the Duquesne High School to a group of parents and teachers. His subject will be "The Relation of the Parent-Teacher Association to the School and Community."

COAL LEADERS STUDY LABOR TROUBLES

Improper discipline by poorly trained staffs was blamed for some mine labor troubles before the coal division convention of the American Mining Congress, which holds its single business session today with election of officers.

Failure of many officials to distinguish between issuing instructions and instructing was cited by James A. Pierce, consulting engineer, in discussing need of good discipline.

Company towns were discussed by M. L. Coulter, of Clearfield, who pointed out the need for modern conditions and facilities, despite the unprofitable ownership. Improved equipment lending to safety and lower production costs led discussions in the day's sessions.

'Goodwill' Girls Appearing in Opera

Olive oil brings glamour to your skin

—and it's olive oil that makes Palmolive green

NATURE'S priceless secret of skin beauty has not changed in over 3,000 years. It is to be found in the precious oils of olive and palm.

Fortunately, the beauty effects of these oils are yours today in Palmolive Soap—easy to use, simple and inexpensive. The fragrant lather of Palmolive enters every tiny pore, removing those accumulations of dirt, oil secretions, and perspiration, which otherwise clog pores and enlarge them.

This thorough cleansing keeps skin clear and fine in texture, bringing out all the charm of natural loveliness.

Now that Palmolive is selling at the lowest price in history, give yourself the full benefit of its mild, gentle cleansing—for the bath as well as face and hands.

More than 20,000 experts advise this treatment

Beauty experts outline this daily care: Work up a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Massage it gently into the skin of face, neck and shoulders. Rinse first with warm water, then with cold. You will soon see how this gentle care brings the bloom of youth to your skin.

Compare....

the total Cost of Hotel Living

What you pay for your room is only part of your cost of living in a hotel. Compare room rates, but don't stop there. Compare food prices, the costs of supplementary services, of "extras". Compare what you get... in total... as well as what you pay.

Statler guests are able to compare. Our service policies, our operating policies, give travelers a definite, measurable unit of value... as near a trade-marked package as the hotel world affords.

Statler guests know how to add. Our pricing policies, consistently followed over the years, add up to the lowest cost living afforded by any good hotel.

Compare....

rooms; Compare Room Rates

Every room in every Statler is a room with bath, with circulating ice water, with free radio reception, with free morning newspaper under the door, with bed-head reading lamp, with full-length mirror, with comfortable bed and inner-spring hair mattress. When we say "Compare our rooms, compare our prices" we mean just that. Both are outstanding in this buyers' market.

Compare....

the Service; Compare its Cost

At your beck and call in every Statler is Statler Service, also known, definite, measurable, and of recognized standard. Founded on a trained organization (73 per cent of Statler stockholders are employees). Living up to published service codes (we were the first hotel organization to adopt such codes). Guaranteeing satisfaction to every guest (we were the first hotel organization to make such a guarantee... and, as the public knows, we always make it good).

You are not "nickeled and dimed" to death. You don't buy back your hat at our public restaurant check-rooms; this service is free; attendants are instructed not to accept tips.

The Statlers pioneered these and other reforms... and more will follow. Again we say: Compare.

Compare....

the Food; Compare its Price

We'll serve our food alongside that of anybody who can prepare good food, and let an epicure cast the deciding vote. No restaurant (or home) uses better products. Few can exercise as great care... and skill... in preparation and in service.

Club breakfasts, plate luncheons, combination dinners... all priced in keeping with today's conditions. In every Statler hotel a variety of restaurants, service and prices... take your choice! We invite comparison.

Compare....

the Extras; Compare their Cost

Street-store prices prevail at our cigar and news stands. Not one cent of tribute on the newspaper you buy. No three-cent tribute for a pack of cigarettes... not in these hotels.

Laundry prices are fair prices... you get same-day service at no extra charge. Valet prices, barber shop prices... all consistent with good service and today's conditions.

A two-cent premium here, a twenty per cent premium there... it all adds up, but not at a Statler. That's why we say again: Compare.

JUDGE TO VIEW NADINE ROAD FEUD SITE

Judge Elder W. Marshall will personally inspect the much-discussed engineering "blunder" in the Allegheny River boulevard at Nadine.

At the hearing on making permanent a temporary injunction obtained by the Pennsylvania Water Compay to prevent Allegheny County from taking a strip of land to straighten the boulevard, Judge Marshall was invited by both sides to visit the company's pumping station at Nadine. He said he would do so tomorrow.

George S. Davison, vice president of the company who has handled negotiations with the county, was unable to atend today's hearing. He is in West Penn Hospital recovering from an operation April 1, the court was informed.

Attorney William Watson Smith, for the company, told the court:

"If the county is permitted to take this land the Nadine plant will be put out of business."

W. C. Hawley, chief engineer and general superintendent of the company, testified the firm supplies about 10,000,000 gallons of water daily to 135,000 customers and manufacturing plants in the eastern part of the city and suburbs. All of it is pumped by the Nadine station.

Attorney Smith indicated he would seek to test the constitutionality of the act passed by the Legislature giving the county power of eminent domain in the Nadine controversy.

EDDIE DISARMS OWN OFFICER

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., May 10.—(AP.)—Eddie McCloskey, Johnstown's fiery Mayor, yesterday forcibly disarmed Captain of Traffic James B. Adams and suspended him for 10 days for misconduct. The Mayor also suspended Arthur T. Mahan, civilian superintendent of police, for 14 days.

Adams is charged with mistreating an officer who was obtaining information from two men and two women offering liquor they said they had bought at a restaurant.

McCloskey charges Mahan with failing to order Adams to turn in his gun and other equipment.

MY OWN LIFE STORY :: By EVELYN NESBIT THAW

American beauty, from her friend in the front row."

This man was the head of one of America's greatest corporations. His fortune made Harry Thaw's look sick in comparison. And he was handsome. If I had wanted to marry, surely I would have accepted his proposal.

Paris Proposal Rejected

Again, believe me, I am telling the truth. I told Harry Thaw as tactfully as possible that I did not care to marry him or any other man. My refusal upset him a lot. He couldn't understand it. He told me that all sorts of beautiful girls had literally thrown themselves at him—beautiful young debutantes in London, New York and other cities; beauties of the stage, and others.

"Why won't you marry me?" he demanded. "You have got to marry me. You can't go on like this. You don't want people to think wrong of you, do you?"

In Paris the line of demarcation between women considered socially respectable and others is strictly drawn. You are on either one side of the fence or the other. In this country such fine social distinctions do not exist, especially today. But in the Paris of that period, a man dining publicly with an actress or a lady of the demi-mode, could not speak to his own sister publicly if she happened to appear on the scene.

Then Harry Thaw, with his usual cunning, got the idea he would enlist the aid of some powerful person or persons whom he thought could influence me to such an extent that I would change my mind and agree to marry him.

Advice from Nobility

At that time Elsie De Wolfe and the brilliant Elisabeth Marbury were living in an exquisite villa at Versailles. I think this particular villa, a small jewel-like house surrounded by velvety lawns and beautiful big shade trees, had once belonged to Marie Antoinette. Their "Sunday afternoons" where one met many celebrities and names of the haut monde were exceedingly popular.

At one of their Sunday afternoon receptions I met the venerable Marchioness of Anglesey who immediately became much interested in me.

"Who is this young child?" she demanded to know. "What is her name? Evelyn Nesbit? Who is she? An American? I would like to take her under my wing and launch her in London. What a match she could make!"

When I told her I had been a chorus girl in New York, she said:

"Ah! What a pity! What a pity! Quel dommage! It is too bad you have been on the stage."

Thaw didn't like this conversation a bit. I had her ladyship's pet Pomeranian on my lap and, although she was an ancient dame, we seemed to hit it off beautifully. She was very much alive, quick-witted. It was marvelous just to sit there and talk to her. On her beautifully dressed silver hair she wore an exquisite mauve garden hat, draped on either side with silk wistaria flowers shaded from palest mauve to deep purple. I was thrilled with her and had a marvelous afternoon.

Career, Not Marriage

Thaw had a long talk about me with Elisabeth Marbury, who asked me why I wouldn't marry him. I simply told her the same thing, which was the truth. I didn't want to marry. I wanted a career on the stage.

"But you must make some definite move, and now is the time to make it," said Miss Marbury. "You must either marry or have a career. If you don't marry, then you must not waste your time. You must study; take singing lessons; many other things; prepare yourself properly for the stage. You must be able to do something and do it well if you are to have a career."

This really was good advice. As usual, Miss Marbury was talking sense. I decided to resume my neglected studies. She gave Harry Thaw the name of a celebrated singing teacher.

For a while I lived in peace. But Thaw's persistence again asserted itself. He demanded a reason—some definite reason—for my constantly refusing his marriage proposals. His vanity was hurt by my constant refusals.

"If the United States was a monarchy," said he, "I would be the Prince of Pittsburgh and the Duke of Allegheny. Why do you refuse me? We can't go on like this. You have got to marry me."

All during this time the name of Stanford White was never mentioned. The few times it had come up, I noticed Thaw would be consumed with rage and fury, his face hideously convulsed with hatred. One evening I had run across an American girl in Paris. Among other things she said:

"Well, well, how's everything? How's everybody back in New York? How's Stanford?"

The effect on Thaw was dreadful. He upset the entire table at which we were sitting, dashed dishes, glassware and silverware to the floor. Waiters came running. Everyone was in an uproar. I sat there frightened, amazed and astounded; couldn't understand it. But it taught me one thing—never to mention Stanford White's name to Harry Thaw.

I was naturally a good-natured kid and couldn't understand such bitter hatred. And, mind you, at that time Thaw knew nothing definite about White and me. He only knew what he had heard in New York.

One night he refused to go out to dinner; had food sent in from a nearby restaurant. The dinner was a silent, unpleasant affair. Again I had been quarreling with my mother and we were not speaking. By this time she utterly detested Thaw and wanted me to go home; cried bitterly for hours at a stretch. She was not enjoying Paris. She wanted to return to New York.

Alas and alack! If I had only listened to her. But, in spite of Thaw's pecadilloes, his terrible temper, I was having a gorgeous time—in love with Paris.

'Prisoners' in Paris

That night after my mother retired, Thaw and I sat in the salon and again began the old argument about marriage. Thaw would not let me go to bed. He kept me sitting up all night, arguing and fussing on the same old subject.

The next day he refused to leave the house. We were forced to lunch in the salon and dine there. My mother couldn't understand it. In the privacy of her own room, she said to me:

"We must get out of here. We must go home. I don't want you to marry this man either. His disposition is abominable. There's something wrong with him. He terrifies me; frightens me to death.

"Please, please come home. I have Stanford White's five hundred dollar letter of credit hidden in my bag. Thaw does not know we have this money. I can go out, buy the tickets without his knowing it, and then we can easily slip away—say we are going shopping or something, get on the train, and be on the high seas before he knows it."

She cried bitterly.

"Oh, gee! Mama! We haven't seen London yet," I said. "Or Berlin or Vienna. Gosh! I don't want to go home yet."

The usual argument followed.

"Well, at any rate, don't sit up all night again talking," she said. "Go to your room and go to bed."

But that was not to be.

Again Thaw kept me up all night. In his pajamas and lounging robe, he paced the floor. He wept, pleaded, stormed, threatened. The situation was becoming intolerable.

Again, next day he refused to leave the apartment or let us out. My mother remained in her room weeping. I didn't know what to do; how to put an end to this intolerable situation. Then I changed my mind and began to regret our trip to Paris.

A Momentous Quarrel

On the third night I was almost in a state of hysteria, my nerves worn to a frazzle. It seemed as though this argument would never end.

I had never told my mother anything about the Stanford White affair. In her eyes Stanford White was the highest, finest, most marvelous man in the world.

"He is like a father to you," she would say. "You are ungrateful to him. It was a mistake to take this trip. You should have been sent right back to school after you left the hospital. I wish I had not listened to the doctors and their talk about a sea voyage. Mr. White would never approve of our living here like this in such close contact with Thaw."

This was true, too. The situation embarrassed mother. She really suffered over it.

Exhausted and weary, I returned to the salon. Thaw was still walking up and down, chewing at his nails. I closed the doors between our rooms so that my mother could not hear our conversation.

"You are not strong," he said, "You are not the hard type. You couldn't stand the struggle of a life on the stage. Let me marry you and take you home to my mother."

"No," I replied.

"Why not?" he persisted.

I did not reply.

"Then tell me this. Are you a good girl? Is it all right for me to introduce you to my mother and sisters?"

"What do you mean by that?" I asked, so tired I could hardly hold my head up.

"I mean are you a 'good' girl?"

"Please," I replied wearily, "I would rather not talk about it. Please let me go to my room and get some sleep. I am too tired and almost out of my mind. I can't stand this any longer. I'll go crazy."

He seized me and held me by the wrists.

"You've got to tell me!" he cried.

Bachelor Gives Reason Why Men Hesitate to Marry

Why is a bachelor?

Do men fail to marry because they are selfish—because they want to be free to browse around without any petticoat government?

Do they fail to "pop the question" because it's no longer necessary to marry in order to obtain "the comforts of a home"—

Or are they staying single because they're afraid of the modern girl and her demands?

Plenty of puzzled girls would like an answer to that question. There still are as many lovers as in the good old days when Romance Was In Flower; but fewer and fewer of them lead ladies to the altar. Why not?

Jim has an answer—and maybe you have an answer to Jim. Dear Elsie Robinson:

Every so often some young woman breaks into print with the statement that the average man is a no-good scoundrel, who imposes on a girl at every opportunity and monopolizes her time, yet becomes painfully shy every time the question of marriage arises. She then goes on to say that practically any man can afford to marry if he really wants to, and that any man who doesn't is a coward, a slacker and a low-down-son-of-a-gun.

Such talk is usually greeted by loud cheers from all the girls, and a rather bewildered silence by the men. Well, it's time somebody took up the rudgels for the bachelors. In the first place, we can't see why such a hullabalioo should be kicked up over our "single blessedness." After all, it's our own business. If we prefer to stay single, why can't the world leave us alone?

CAN'T AFFORD TO WED

But the fact is, the majority of us would like to marry, but we just can't see our way clear to take on the responsibilities just yet. "Same old stall," I hear the women sniff. "If a man really cares for a woman, he'll find a way." Then said remark is usually followed by a long speech on the joys of "love in a cottage," the beauties of "sharing life's struggles," and a lot of sentimental guff about the extreme happiness of starving together.

Well, now take my own case. I was raised in a family of fairly high standards of living. Now I am just starting in my profession—one where the rewards are high but in which it takes 10 years at least to make any showing. Naturally, I have met many charming girls, and probably could have married one of them. Why didn't I? I couldn't afford it.

I had to consider whether I would marry and settle down to some prosaic job to support a wife, or stay single and work at my chosen profession. If I succeed, I can marry. If I don't, no one will suffer but myself.

PREFERS TO WAIT

Certainly I'd like a home, and the loving companionship of a wife. Wandering through life alone is no picnic. But I refuse to drag a woman through years of poverty. Until I can afford a good home, and have a reasonably secure place in my profession, I won't marry.

So, girls, don't be so hard on bachelors. We're not all shirkers or fly-by-nights. We've had to choose between staying single and doing the only work we could be satisfied in, or sacrificing our dreams and doing work we hated, in order to support a wife. JIM.

There's the story. What do you think of it, Mabel, Sally and Jane? Is this a real reason, or just an alibi? And if it's real—do you approve of it?

Do you believe that a man should wait until he can support a wife in the manner to which she'd like to become accustomed, before he marries? Is it all wrong for him to expect her to share his struggles and grow into success with him?

Which is the happiest way? To wait till you have your pile, or to start out with "Love In a Cottage"—or a two-room apartment—and collect it together?

Which would you rather do?

Love Holds Equal Value for all Whom It Favors—Fay King

By FAY KING

In the after-theater crowds you see countless couples together who have eyes only for each other.

Some girls are in imported gowns and others in bargain basement dresses, but they are all alike in the bliss of being with the ones they love best.

Some girls wear orchids while other girls wear gardenias from the corner vendor, but the flowers were all given with the same degree of devotion, and in this was the real value.

The sweet words that have been spoken mean the same whether they were said in a drawing room or the tiny parlor of a little flat.

They are equally happy, these pairs from different paths of life, for they are equally in love.

Madge Finds Difficulty in Proving Her Story

That I was on trial before the man who had offered me a seat in his sedan I knew from the inflections of his voice when he said, "Better come clean, Sister," and inquired whether I had any reason for selecting his car and asking if I could rent it for an hour or two.

"Why, of course, any car would do," I said promptly. "I intended to hail the first driver who came along. But I am very glad that you were the first to pass, for I need a powerful car like this beauty."

I deliberately added the last word, for I was sure that my interlocutor was the type of man that takes inordinate pride in any possession of his own, from woman to motor car.

"You've got good lamps, Babe," he said approvingly. "I thought you looked like a gal with an eye for a good crate. And now that's out of the way, suppose you tell me why you want to rent my car, and me, I go with the car, you know."

I wondered if my imagination, in Dicky's parlance, was "working overtime," or if there was something behind the man's gibing remark at which I might well take alarm. But I had only one course before me, and that was to take his words and his deeds at their face value.

LAUGHS AT HER

"Oh, of course, I shall need you with the car," I said, trying to make my voice naive and inexperienced. "I never could drive this myself. Besides, I have to watch the road."

"Why? You mustn't stall any more, Babe. What's on your mind beside your hat?

What should I tell him? Several fantastic stories flashed through my mind and were rejected. At last desperately I resolved to tell him the truth, camouflaging it as much as possible.

"I have a friend, a very young girl, who is being carried off against her will by a man who wishes to marry her," I said slowly. "A young man friend of hers has managed to swing himself to the rear of the car without being seen. He is dropping markers of the way they are taking. So you can see how vital it is that I have a fast car to trail him."

The answer to this was unexpected. He threw back his head and laughed, long and raucously.

"That's the worst yarn I've heard in a month of Sundays, Babe," he said. "If you can't spiel one better than that you'll simply have to take a little joy ride with me and forget about whatever scheme you really have up your sleeve. Or— Perhaps that's really what's on your mind; a bit lonesome for the bright lights, and the bubbles, and a good-looking man, eh, Red-head?"

There was a leer in his voice that made my fingers itch to slap his smiling face. There had been a faint but definable respect in his voice when I had asked him if he would rent the car, a respect tinged with doubt of my motives, but still far different than this attitude of amused acceptance of me as a woman seeking adventure.

AN IMPASSIONED PLEA

I clinched my fingers into my palms and almost bit my tongue through in the struggle to keep my self-control. I knew that if ever in my life I needed coolness and the possession of all my faculties, I needed them in this minute. But I did not keep my voice cool when I answered him. Purposely I made it rough, impassioned, pleading, and threw into it all the histrionic lore that I had learned long ago at the feet of my mother's friend who had begged without avail for permision to put me into the theatrical profession.

"Oh, but it's all true!" I cried. "Isn't there some way I can make you believe me? I'm not lying to you. Won't you just let me try to trace my friend for a little way? Perhaps I can find some other car then that I can rent; but please, please don't hinder me now!"

Correct Manners

Note of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to write this letter of thanks?

My little girl, who is four years old, has been ill for some time and the Sunday school where she goes sent her a basket of fruit. Should I address the thank-you letter to her teacher or the president of the Sunday school? W.

If, as I take it from your letter, this thoughtful present came from the Sunday school, as a whole and not from her special class, your note of thanks should be addressed to the president of the Sunday school. It might read something like this:

Dear Mr. Scoville:

What kind and thoughtful friends you are! I can't begin to tell you how touched we were by your goodness to my small daughter while she was ill, nor how grateful we are. You made her so happy, and your loving plan put her quickly on her road to recovery. Dorothy's devotion to her Sunday School is one of the high-lights of her life, and to receive such a wonderful basket of fruit from you and her other friends there was a memory-making event for her, I assure you.

Will you please be so kind, Mr. Scoville, as to tell the members of the Sunday School how appreciative we are of their kindness? I hope that Dorothy will soon be able to be with you all again, and to tell you herself how much she thanks you.

Friendliest greetings from us all.

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Brown
(Mrs. John Brown)

I have taken the liberty, dear friend, to sign exactly the form of name that you should sign in this letter. This form of signature that a married woman should use in her letters of this kind is most important; and, since the form of signature that you used in your letter to me was not quite right, I know you will not mind if I especially call your attention to this important letter-detail.

Take Them as a Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

While visiting in a distant city recently I was entertained by some of my cousins, and several weeks ago I received a letter containing some snap-shots that we had taken one day while I was there. How shall I accept them? Shall I offer to pay for them, return them and ask for the negatives, or merely thank my cousin for them? H.

Don't do anything but thank her for them. I am sure that she would be distressed if you tried to pay for them, for they are, of course, a present to you, and she would want to have you treat them as you would any other kind of present.

Heed Early Warnings of Rheumatism in Children

When children are afflicted with rheumatism the symptoms are apt to be rather vague. The painful, swollen, reddened joints that we find in adults are rarely present, but the joints are likely to be sensitive. There may be pain in the muscles of the calf, or behind the knee for a day or two.

Dr. Copeland

Sometimes a stiff neck and a sore throat may be the only warnings of an approaching serious heart attack. Anemia and a slight rise of temperature for several weeks, are other and often unheeded warnings.

Acute rheumatism is really the sign of an infection. In children the place where this infection enters the system is commonly the tonsils. In one series of rheumatic cases, 77 per cent of the children had diseased tonsils. Disease of the ears, sinuses and teeth was present in a considerable number of the remaining cases.

When a child's physical condition is below par, and there is a hereditary tendency to rheumatism, he is more susceptible to the disease. Scarlet fever and diphtheria are sometimes followed by acute rheumatic fever.

The evidence of heart involvement may be no more than unusual fatigue after slight exertion, loss of breath on moderate exercise, or occasional pain in the region of the heart. When any one of these symptoms appears, the family physician should be consulted.

After an attack of rheumatism, a child should have a nourishing, easily digested diet and carefully regulated exercise. Convalescence in quiet surroundings where sunshine is plentiful, is advisable whenever it is possible.

"Chorea," popularly known as "St. Vitus dance," is supposed by many to be of rheumatic origin. But this theory has not been proved.

The early symptoms of chorea may be no more than unusual irritability and show of temper. The child may be awkward in his movements and unable to hold objects in his hands. He may even seem to find it impossible to sit or stand still. Persistent winking, and the twitching of certain muscles, may precede the attack of chorea for a month or two, then there appear jerky, irregular and purposeless contractions of the muscles, particularly in the fingers, hands, and face. In severe cases the speech may become jerky and walking is difficult.

Under proper treatment recovery from rheumatism in mild cases may occur in less than a month. In the more severe cases it may be prolonged through a period of several months.

In the treatment complete rest is important. There must be a nutritious diet. Medical attention is necessary.

Answers to Health Queries

G. L. H. Q.—What will correct nearsightedness?

A.—Properly fitted glasses should improve this condition. Consult an eye specialist, who will give you full advice.

M. H. W. Q.—What causes pleurisy?

A.—This usually follows an infection after a cold, or other catarrhal condition. The patient should be under the care of a doctor.

Household Hints

Soak one yard of cheesecloth in warm water and then wring it dry. Saturate the damp cloth with a good furniture polish. Now roll it tightly together and let it remain until the oil has spread throughout the cloth. Dry and use as a duster.

A simple way to remove paint from the hands is to rub newspaper over the paint; it is removed almost instantly.

It is very easy to scald one's self when attempting to put more water in the steaming hot kettle. Place a funnel in the spout and pour the water in through it. The kettle need not be removed from the stove and to be burned is impossible.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

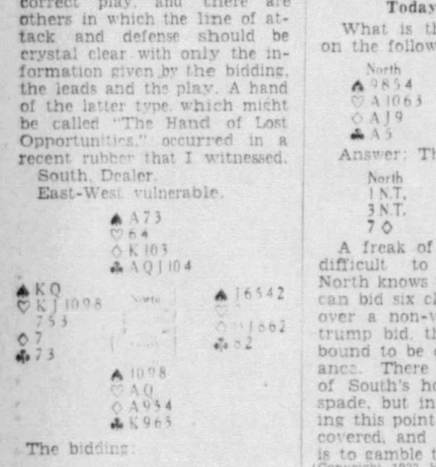
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Hand of Lost Opportunities

Those who read articles discussing Bridge hands in the daily papers, because they see all the hands, form a habit of reaching conclusions that few players would reach in the stress of actual play, when they can see only half of them.

Many readers of Bridge articles are very fine players of Double-Dummy—the game in which all the hands are disclosed. There are, however, instances when even a study of all the cards will not necessarily furnish a correct clue to the correct play, and there are others in which the line of attack and defense should be crystal clear with only the information given by the bidding, the leads and the play. A hand of the latter type, which might be called "The Hand of Lost Opportunities," occurred in a recent rubber that I witnessed.

South, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	3 ♡ (1)	4 ♣ (2)	Pass
5 ♣ (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West figures that, at worst, the penalty for this vulnerable Overcall will be 2 tricks. However, the risk of loss on such a holding is too great.

2—An alternative bid here would have been a pass. Perhaps the hand would have played better at notrump. As a matter of fact, three notrump is assured against any defense.

3—South has no alternative except to bid for game in a minor suit.

The Opening lead was the heart 2, marking East, in view of West's bid, with a singleton in that suit. Hence West must have eight. Two rounds of clubs disclosed the fact that he also held two cards of that suit. The question was: What were the cards in the West hand? In order to throw a little light on this subject, North now took one round of diamonds winning with the King, and followed with the Ace of spades. When West followed suit on the diamond lead, in view of the high cards in sight and West's bid it seemed reasonable to assume that he held the King and Queen of spades. When a high honor fell from the West hand on the spade trick, North returned a spade, knowing that West must be forced to win and would then have nothing left in his hand but hearts.

If he took the heart King on his next lead he would have to give North a discard in one hand and a ruff in the other. However, West saw the trap that was laid for him, and instead of leading a winning heart he led a losing one, permitting Dummy's Queen to win the trick. Because of this fine defensive play, East later made 2 tricks—the spade Knave and the diamond Queen. If West had led the King of hearts and followed with another heart, North's line of play would have been to discard the spade 3 and Dummy would have won the trick with a trump. After this, three rounds of trumps would have squeezed East and permitted the fulfillment of the contract.

The student will note that if North had led a heart rather than a spade to Trick 6, the contract would have been made. West would have had no choice but to win, and, after cashing the spade, would have brought about the situation which is discussed above.

Today's Question

What is the correct bidding on the following hands?

North	South
♠ 9 8 5 4	♠ —
♡ A 10 6 3	♡ —
◇ A J 9	◇ K Q 10 8 7 5
♣ A 5	♣ K Q J 10 6 4 3

North	South
1 N.T.	3 ◇
3 N.T.	6 ♣
7 ◇	Pass

A freak of this kind is very difficult to bid. However, North knows that if his partner can bid six clubs all by himself over a non-vulnerable one-no-trump bid, the three Aces are bound to be of material assistance. There is a slight danger of South's holding a singleton spade, but information regarding this point can never be discovered, and so the best policy is to gamble the hand out.

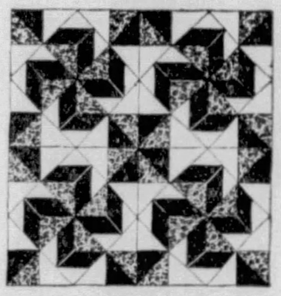
The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Make-up, except for eye shadows, is going faint; even lid darneckers are being soft-pedaled. The rouge pad doesn't go crazy and run away with itself, blushes are as delicate as the coloring of the wild rose. Nor is the lipstick given license to smear itself on in three heavy layers and yell "fire." The idea now is to stimulate the natural complexion in a state of creamy perfection. Coiffures are showing more fluff to conform with fashions that ruffle and flounce now and then. The girl of 1933 puts up an appearance that is no strain upon the optic-nerve. She's a champion.

Good times or bad, the girls and the women gallop at top speed to the beauty works. When it's a matter of hanging on to youthful appearance they figure that economy is not a virtue. They have topknots washed and ironed, faces anointed with sweet smelling oils, finger nails given the complexion of the wild rose. Now they're buying their between-season permanent waves to tide them through until the swimming season sets in and curly-haired mermaids gather on the beaches. They're posing under the little boiling tea kettles, getting wavy and beautiful.

PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Flyfoot No. 431

By LAURA WHEELER

Though the name "Flyfoot" sounds as if the needlewoman who designed it has let the common housefly be her inspiration, it is in reality of far nobler origin. The Greek fret, that motif that was so common to the finest art of Greece, and at the same time appeared in the art of isolated primitive people, is the basis of this quilt pattern. No doubt, seeing Greek motifs used in the architecture all about her home, the colonial needlewoman went one step further and cut it out in the precious patches she had saved for the quilt. It forms an attractive and simple pattern with a small windmill block sharing honors with the more noble fret.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, quilting motif, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for a pattern for this design to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

BUCS LAST TO BE BLANKED IN LEAGUE

AS HAS BEEN remarked once or twice since baseball was born, you can't win them all, so there was nothing to disturb local fans in the defeat of the Pirates yesterday in Boston. It's easy to laugh off one on the chin when a club has lost only five of its first 19 games. Indeed, it will be only in accordance with the law of averages if the Bucs drop two or three more before they get back home. Neither did the quick rout of Waite Hoyt shake confidence in the future value of that veteran. He had won his first two starts, and two out of three is a far better percentage of victories than anybody expected him to turn in. The Braves were about due to hit any pitcher. They had a club batting average of only .205 up to yesterday.

Waite Hoyt

According to Hoyt's own way of figuring things, that defeat will help him. "I'd feel better if I had been given one good shellacking," he has been saying since the middle of the training trip. "I think it does a pitcher good in the spring."

The Pirates gained the distinction of being the last club in the National League to suffer a shutout. All the others had received one or more blanks. It is unusual to see an entire league placed on the whitewashed list before the season is a month old. In the American League, the Yankees, A's and Red Sox have escaped zero defeats so far. The Yankees have not been shut out since August 2, 1931, and have scored in 232 consecutive games to date, a world record.

EVERY TIME THEY send Mike Cvengros back to the minors he proceeds to show pitching class that sooner or later brings him up again. The Pirates had the left-hander in 1927, and he has also been tried and cast adrift by the Giants, the White Sox and the Cubs. Now he's bidding for another chance in the big show.

On the Cardinal farm at Houston in the Texas League, Cvengros is in a fair way toward eclipsing the old achievements of Dizzy Dean for the same club. In his first game he shut out Galveston with one hit. In the second he blanked San Antonio with four safeties, and in the third he had San Antonio whitewashed until the eighth inning, when Clift hit a home run. So Mike has a record of allowing only one run in three complete games and pitching 25 straight runless innings.

THE DODGERS MAY not win the National League pennant, but they are likely to have at least the champion bat-breaker of the majors, if Third Baseman Joe Stripp runs true to his old form.

Stripp left even the Waner brothers far behind in using up bats during 1932. He used no fewer than 11 dozen, or a total of 132, which is quite a lot of timber. But Joe is modest and doesn't claim all the credit. He says the borrowers break more of his bats than he does.

WHEN BURLEIGH GRIMES was with the Pirates he estimated that he would be able to continue pitching major league ball until 40 years old. He will be 40 on August 18, but he has revised his estimate. That shutout he pitched against the Reds recently, followed by another victory in which he held the Braves to two runs, gave the old boy some new ideas, and now he scoffs at being done at 40. He predicts that he'll win 15 games for the Cubs this season, 20 if he gets a few breaks, and what's more he declares he can go on winning in the National League for five or six years longer. Grimes says he feels 10 years younger since his appendix was removed and hopes to prove it after a spell of warm weather. Anyhow, Burleigh can't see why they should be trying to count him out on account of his age while Eppa Rixey continues to hang around.

Burleigh Grimes

AS GRIMES POINTS out, Rixey reached the 42-mark last Wednesday and had almost five full seasons with the Phillies behind him when Burleigh broke in with the Pirates in the latter part of 1916. At that, Grimes has won more games than Rixey in the big show, by a narrow margin. Burleigh has 265 victories to his credit up to date, against 260 for Eppa.

Though Grimes says he can go on pitching winning ball for five or six years, he hopes that it will not be necessary. He would like to get a managerial job within a couple of seasons, and if there is no opening of that sort in the big tent he would welcome a chance to show his talents with some minor league club, feeling confident he can prove his qualifications for a later appointment as a major league pilot.

IF JACK QUINN had not joined the Reds in preference to accepting an American League offer, Grimes would have been the only surviving spitballer in the National League. Chicago has two of the three remaining spitters, with Grimes working for the Cubs and Urban Faber for the White Sox.

"Some of the boys seem to think the old spitter is all that's keeping me in the majors," remarked Burleigh. "That's wrong. I don't throw nearly as many spitters now as I used to throw. I believe I have served up more curve balls in the last five years than I did in all the earlier years of my career."

THE WEIGHT ADVANTAGE that Max Baer will hold in the fight with Max Schmeling on June 8, is not being given any thought in the German's training operations. Joe Jacobs knows that added weight acts as excess baggage and imposes a handicap on a boxer who normally scales at a lower figure, so no attempt will be made to build up Schmeling during his training. Putting on false poundage doesn't help a fighter, and may involve a loss of speed. Jacobs says he may change his plans later, but at present he has no idea of trying to cut down Baer's advantage in avoirdupois. It is probable that Schmeling will enter the ring weighing not much more than 190, which will be only slightly higher than was his poundage against Jack Sharkey last year.

MEASURING SCHMELING'S CHANCES for victory from another angle, Jacobs thinks the former champion will receive some assistance from his opponent. It is his idea that Baer will help to beat himself by his temperament and his inclination to do some clowning.

The Californian is reported to have cut out a lot of his favorite antics and to be taking fighting as a serious business at last. But Jacobs sees Baer's temperament too deeply rooted to make a quick cure possible, and he looks for it to show itself at any stage of the fight, to the advantage of a serious and business-like fighter of Schmeling's type.

LOS ANGELES having made the proposed intercollegiate regatta at Long Beach a civic proposition, underwriting the expenses of three visiting Eastern crews, speculation is in order as to how the three will be selected. One suggestion is that the call should go to Princeton, the winner of the Harvard-Yale race, and a choice among Syracuse, Navy and Penn.

Charley Harvey

As a paying attraction—they charge admission to rowing races at Long Beach—it is argued that Princeton, Yale and Harvard, the reunited Big Three, would be the best cards. Navy being figured to be about the only other outfit that has the color and tradition behind it to appeal to the Coast.

OLD CHARLEY HARVEY, veteran ers and looking after the interests of Sea importer of English and Australian fightman Watson in this country, says it's all the same to him but that New York bettors are making a mistake in establishing Kid Chocolate as a 3-to-2 favorite for Friday night's featherweight championship match. Harvey holds that Chocolate ought not to be better than an even-money choice, and predicts the champion will find Watson a much better fighter than defeated Fidel La Barba. He says Watson was nervous and upset when he met La Barba, following the gymnasium ordeal he went through and the panning he received from some of the New York critics, but that this time he'll be right from the first bell. Another thing that will improve the Seaman's form, Harvey believes, is that he has trained in the open air, whereas all of his work for the La Barba bout was done in a stuffy gymnasium, with no chance to relax, which hardly soothed his nerves or quieted his troubled mind.

RAIN KEEPS PIRATES, BRAVES IDLE

WOMAN CHAMP TO PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., the United States tennis champion, who has been taking a vacation from play, has been nominated by the United States Davis Cup committee to the team which will meet either Cuba or Canada in the final of the North American zone late this month.

Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and George M. Lott, Jr., who with Cliff Sutter composed the United States team against Mexico in the first round last week, were named to play with Vines. Allison will act as captain and Vanf Ryn as manager of the squad, as they did against Mexico. Sutter, temporarily at least, is dropped from the team.

WON ON COAST

Vines laid aside his racquets for several weeks following his return from a successful winter tour of New Zealand and Australia, but returned to play in the Ojai, Cal., tournament two weeks ago and won both the singles title and the doubles with Keith Gledhill.

Allison, Van Ryn and Lott are en route to New York after turning back Mexico in five straight matches over the week-end and are due tomorrow. They will be joined by Vines and will practice in New York until their opponents for the zone final where Cuba and Canada meet in their first round engagement tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

The team, as selected for the zone final, probably will carry right through to the challenge round against France, if, as expected, it again wins its way that far.

HELEN TO PLAY ABROAD

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—(AP.)—America's queen of the courts, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, decided to open her campaign for 1933 honors abroad as she did last year.

Mrs. Moody said she would leave here in time to participate in a warm-up tournament in England preparatory to defense of her all-English singles crown at Wimbledon.

While she has had no information as to dates of the various tournaments leading up to the Wimbledon classic, Mrs. Moody said she thought she would enter one recalled by her as "the gypsy tournament."

Upon her return to this country, Mrs. Moody will compete in the national championships at Forest Hills, N. Y., in an effort to regain a title she has held seven times. She passed up the nationals last season after a long stay abroad.

ENTRY RECEIVED

LONDON, May 10.—(AP.)—The cabled entry of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody for the tennis championships at Wimbledon in June and July was received today.

Robertson Selected To Ride Head Play

BALTIMORE, May 10.—(INS.)—Alfred Robertson, contract rider for the Whitney stables, will be astride Head Play in the Preakness to be run at Pimlico on Saturday.

Mrs. Silas B. Mason, new owner of the horse, made the announcement this morning that Robbie had been selected to pilot Head Play.

H. W. Fisher, who rode the horse in the Kentucky Derby, was suspended for rough tactics in that race, and under Maryland racing rules could not accept the mount for the Preakness.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE MONSTER MONUMENT—One of the most original monuments to be found anywhere was erected in 1897 by the city of Stuttgart, Wuerttemberg, in honor of the centenary of Wilhelm I, first Prussian king to become German emperor. The loyal burghers chose for the purpose the petrified body of a prehistoric fish, measuring 12 feet exclusive of the head. The diameter of its throat is 6½ feet. Its age has been computed at about 10,000 years. It already was an ancient pre-historic relic in the days of the flood.

TOMORROW: THE FAILINGS OF THE SUN.

DORMONT MEET POSTPONED

The independent track and field meet for county high schools, scheduled this afternoon at Dormont High School field, has been postponed until Monday because of wet grounds. Eight schools are entered in the meet.

Two other track meets are listed for disposal tomorrow. Out at Schenley High School field the trade school boys will be competing for the first time for the Fintex trophy. The trophy must be won three times to become permanent property.

Qualifying trials for the P. I. A. A. championship will be run off at Oliver High School field tomorrow afternoon.

Tennis also holds an important place on the scholastic card. The city matches find Westinghouse at Peabody and Schenley at Carrick. In the suburban division, Duquesne Preps play at Arnold, Bellevue at Crafton, Munhall at Wilkinsburg and Turtle Creek at Swissvale.

Scott High, of North Braddock, and Washington are tapering off today for their spring football match at Scott tomorrow night.

Two more schools are expected to enroll in the Catholic High School Football League, thus making it an eight-team affair. Central Catholic and St. Joseph's, of Natrona, are expected to complete the circuit. Another meeting will be held at St. Justin's, Friday.

West Va. Golfers Beat Pitt Again

UNIONTOWN, Pa., May 10.—(AP.)—Gracefully sinking a 15-foot putt on the last green, Bob Lowe settled the West Virginia-Pitt golf fight yesterday, giving the Montaineers a 4-to-2 victory.

Manning also had the best ball in the second foursome to gain another point for the Mountaineers.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Notes at random . . . Closer and closer we come to that local "natural" bout between Jackie Wilson and Jimmy Thomas, Negro ring rivals, which will make a pip of an attraction for one of the outdoor clubs this summer . . . say what you will about Jackie's style, he's a smart boxer . . . It doesn't take him long to figure out an opponent, just a round or two, and then he piles up the winning points in his own quick-moving, cat-like, light-hitting manner . . . Midget Wolgast, Tommy Paul, Johnny Pena and Eddie Shea are his most recent big-time victims . . . He got a draw with Wolgast, the flyweight champion, and holds decisions over the others . . . One of these days the boys will admit that he's good, whether or not they are able to go into ecstacies about his style. . . . Thomas is a hard hitter of the boring-in type . . . They should make an interesting fight.

Ira Hall, the automobile racer, started out as a boxer, but thought the sport was too tough, and so he became a knight of the roaring road, and he's been in 43 wrecks . . . He began with Packey McFarland, who made a fortune in the ring . . . Hall's next start will be in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial Day.

The feature of the play of our Pirates this year is that they seem to have everything . . . Nary a weakness has been apparent in their armor so far . . . They have good pitching, a tight defense in both the infield and outfield, and the batting punch against both right and left-hand pitchers . . . Barring bad breaks in the way of accidents to stars, they figure to be right where they are now throughout the season, and, if they win the pennant, they are liable to do it so handily that they'll be the talk of the baseball world.

You never saw a fight manager so enthused about a new prospect as Bunny Buntach is over his Sunny Jim McVey, Negro heavyweight, who started out several years ago as a sparring partner of Buck McTiernan . . . McVey, always a heavy puncher, but lacking in ambition, has taken a new lease on life and Bunny believes he will give the local fans what they want, a socker who can supply thrills . . . Petey Sarron, the Washington (D. C.) featherweight, who boxes Johnny Datto at the Arena, Friday night, is a Syrian. . . . He recently boxed a draw with Tommy Paul in Virginia.

Kid Chocolate is a 7-5 favorite to defeat Seaman Watson, the British champion, in their 15-round bout for the world featherweight title in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night, despite Watson's unexpectedly strong showing in defeating Fidel LaBarba in his only other showing in this country. . . . Speaking of amateurism as is amateurism, they do say the members of the local college golf teams furnish their own equipment, even down to the balls and clubs. . . . That's sport for sport's sake with a trio of capital S's.

Add the name of good old Dr. L. G. Beinhauer to the list of those who think Pete O'Hara, the veteran pro, is just about the best golf teacher in these here parts . . . The bangtails go at the Bainbridge Park track, Gauga Lake, O., beginning May 20 for a meeting of 25 or more days . . . Charley Crovatta, the Uniontown amateur, staged a nifty comeback in winning the welterweight championship in the state title tourney at the Stadium the other night . . . And, incidentally, he won back many of the boys who had deserted him in recent months and now are on his band wagon again . . . Tommy Loughran is quoted as saying he wouldn't be surprised to see Max Baer beat Max Schmeling in their biffing bee in New York on June 8.—HARRY KECK.

Postponements are piling up higher than the proverbial kite for the sandlot baseball teams. Rain yesterday practically washed out the day's card and put some diamonds in such shape as to make it doubtful if they can be used today.

The City League has no games scheduled this evening, so should the diamonds dry up in time for games, fans will have to look to the smaller leagues for entertainment.

The Ottie Cochrans have called off their home opener with Homewood, scheduled for Pleasant Valley field tomorrow evening, and the scheduled appearance of Councilmen Harry Little and C. B. Connelly will be postponed until next Monday night, when Books are billed to appear at Wilson Avenue.

Two games are carded in the Greater Pittsburgh League this evening that should flash plenty of action. Lincoln Community goes to St. Clair to meet the All-Stars, and the J. J. Laffeys clash with Frick Park at the Braddock Avenue Field.

The Homestead Grays play at Canonsburg today.

Manager Dalzell, of Homewood, has set his official opening for Friday, when the Book nine champion of the City League, visits the East End grounds.

Mayor John Herron will be on hand to throw out the first ball.

Pitcher Buzz Isherwood has been signed by the Parmelee Club, which opens its season tomorrow with Julian Club at Westinghouse High field.

FREEMAN VICTOR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 10.—(AP.)—Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion and now fighting as a middleweight, won a 10-round decision over Jack King, of Little Rock, last night. There were no knockdowns. The fight was billed as a southern middleweight championship affair.

BOSTON, May 10.—Rain today prevented the final battle of the three-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves.

The showing of the league leaders in their second fight at the Wigwam disclosed they can be stopped by the right sort of right-handed pitching. Fred Frankhouse deals his curve and fast ball in a side-arm manner and he has plenty on the ball. In any event he made the Pirates' vaunted stars appear as so many boys trying out for a school team. The Bucs were blanked on three hits, 7-0.

McKechnie's men lost little time in solving Hoyt. Randy Moore nicked him for a double at the start of the second and Walter Berger duplicated the punch to score his mate. Schulmerich also cashed in with a two-sacker to score Berger. Piet threw out Spohrer as Schulmerich advanced. Maranville came through with a single to score the third counter. Smith relieved Hoyt before the inning was over and stopped the scoring for the time.

Frankhouse did not allow a hit after the fourth inning.

Dickey Suffers Indigestion Attack

CHICAGO, May 10.—(AP.)—Bill Dickey, head man of the New York Yankee catching staff, today was permitted to lie abed until noon—to aid in recovery from an attack of acute indigestion.

For a while yesterday it appeared that he had appendicitis but an examination showed his blood count to be normal. He was seized with severe pains in the region of the appendix at breakfast yesterday. At noon he had more pain and was placed under observation to determine if appendicitis was the cause.

Later, however, Dr. Eugene Taylor decided that indigestion was the ailment and became certain when Dickey complained at the scanty dinner given him last night.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

Nick Altrock

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—Funny how you get used to the usual run of things. When they declared the bank holiday, I was slightly bewildered. When we went off the gold standard, I got a kind of a jolt. When they gave us real beer, I reeled a little. But when Jack Quinn retired from baseball the other day, to join the Reds, they had to duck me in aromatic spirits of ammonia.

Jack's been in the national pastime so long he's as much a fixture as the center field flagpole. He was pitching when ladies wore eight-piece bathing suits, when corner lots were two for a quarter in Los Angeles and Henry Ford was repairing bicycles. No kidding.

Jack gave up counting his age long ago. He refused to blow out birthday candles so as to save his wind. But he must be heading toward the 60s, and that, folks, is what I call a career. More power to the guy in his retirement, and may his carpet slippers fit easy.

RED SOX PROFIT IN DEAL WITH BROWNS

CLUB REPORTED AFTER HUDLIN AND LARY

Associated Press.

The quarter-million bankroll that Tom Yawkey brought into baseball about two months ago probably is $50,000 short today, but the Boston Sox have two new players who promise to boost the perennial tail-enders a few notches in the American League standing.

Going to Cleveland yesterday ostensibly to attend a special league meeting, during which he was elected a director, Yawkey and Eddie Collins, his general manager, made a surprise trade with Phil Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, for Lloyd Brown, a high-grade lefthanded pitcher, and Rick Ferrell, ace of the Browns' catching department.

SOX GAIN STRENGTH

These stars cost the Red Sox an unannounced sum, reported to be $50,000, and the services of Mervin Shea, a smart enough catcher, but a weak hitter. The cash was the big inducement to Ball, who is said to have lost considerable money this season, while his team played to small crowds.

The purchase of Brown gives Manager Marty McManus a sixth starting pitcher and a crack southpaw to team up with Bob Weiland. St. Louis obtained Brown from the Washington Senators, for whom he won 15 out of 27 starts last season. Ferrell, brother of Wesley, the Cleveland pitcher, has been with the Browns for the past four seasons. He is regarded as one of the best catchers in the American League, having batted for .315 last season and .300 in 1931.

Late reports from Cleveland had Yawkey and Collins dickering with the Cleveland Indians for Willis Hudlin, a righthanded pitcher, and Outfielder Joe Vosmik, said to be suffering from weak eyes, while casting envious glances at Lyn Larry, the New York Yankees' shortstop.

BOKEN STARS

A bit of tough luck for Buddy Myer, regular Washington second baseman, has turned out to be rare good fortune for youthful Bob Boken. Boken got his big chance last Saturday when Myer was hit on the head by one of Whitlow Wyatt's pitches and was forced out of action.

Since then the rookie has played four full games, made nine hits, driven in nine runs, and provided the winning wallop in two games.

Monday Bob crashed a home run in the twelfth inning to give Washington a 10-8 victory over St. Louis and yesterday he walloped a single that climaxed a ninth inning rally against the same club and won again for the Senators, 7 to 5.

Only one other game was played yesterday and that saw the disastrous downfall of the Pittsburgh Pirates, National League leaders, before the curving of Fred Frankhouse and the slugging of his Boston teammates. Frankhouse gave the Bucs only three hits while the Braves pounded Waite Hoyt, Hal Smith and Leon Chagnon for 15 blows and a 7-0 triumph.

May Name County Park Pro Today

The position of golf professional at the North County Park course probably will be filled by the County Commissioners today. It is unlikely that the Commissioners will agree on the selection of the new professional as it is understood that Commissioner W. D. Mansfield is supporting one candidate while C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr are favoring a second.

Mansfield is said to be ready to suggest Bernie McFarland, brother of James McFarland, who held the position until a few months ago when he was dropped from the payroll.

McGovern and Barr probably will bring about the appointment of Walter Loeffler, who gave up his job as pro at the South Hills Country Club last week.

Arizmendi to Appeal Barring From U. S.

TIA JUANA, Mexico, May 10.—(AP.)—Barred from the United States as an "undesirable alien," Alberto (Baby) Arizmendi, Mexican featherweight boxer and at one time a leading contender for the world title in his class, today said he would appeal to the United States Department of Labor.

An Immigration Board of Inquiry, sitting at San Ysidro, Calif., yesterday, ruled against the Mexican. Arizmendi recently lost a civil suit in Los Angeles brought by Frances Armenta, 17, who charged the fighter with being the father of her child. A judgment for $3,500 was returned against the Mexican.

McKnights to Meet Curry Saturday

The McKnights will meet the Curry soccer team in the first of a three-game series on the Duquesne University field Saturday afternoon, for possession of the West Penn cup.

Local Swimming Stars On Seals' Program

JACK SCARRY ANNA MAE GORMAN RALPH SHINTON

Mermaids, Coaches Are Speakers Tonight

How it feels to be a national swimming champion with three titles and a few world records in your possession—

How these champions are developed from the embryonic stage—

These topics will be discussed in interesting fashion during the weekly radio broadcast of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

The program will bring to the microphone Miss Lenore Kight, holder of those championships and records and the successor to Miss Helene Madison as America's mermaid queen; Miss Anna Mae Gorman, her teammate, who gives promise of following in her footsteps; Jack Scarry, their coach, and Ralph V. Shinton, the Library's first champion, who was at his peak a quarter of a century ago and still is prominent in amateur sports circles.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies, with Leland Becraft as announcer and Miss Ruth Johnstone at the piano.

None too encouraged by its gate of only around $1,000 for its Eddie Shea-Jackie Wilson bout last Monday night, the Motor Square Boxing Club is getting ready to close the indoor season next Monday night, with a card Matchmaker Jules Beck now is preparing. He expects to be able to announce it within 24 hours.

The Garden was planning to use Tracey Cox against Eddie (Kid) Wolfe for its closing feature, but Cox is suffering from boils and can't go on. Wolfe is available if a suitable opponent can be dug up for him.

Meanwhile an important announcement is due today regarding the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock. Owner Carl Baldridge has set this as the date on which he will reveal his plans for the season.

The Alabama Kid has an ambition in connection with his 10-round bout at the Arena, Friday night. He wants to do something Frankie Goosby was unable to do—knock out rugged Joe Rugguzzoni, of Detroit. He has the punch with which to do it if he can connect.

Between Rounds

Women accompanied by escorts will be admitted free to the amateur boxing show in the McKeesport Palisades Arena tomorrow night. Promoter Jim McGirr today announced the listing of the following additional bouts: Boster Lostetter vs. Charley Knapper, Young Gizzy vs. Jimmy Ferry, William Johnson vs. Mickey Todd and Johnny Veitler vs. Jimmy Meyers.

Tug Phillips, the Charleroi welterweight, returns tonight to East Liverpool, O., where his bout with Freddie Edwards recently wound up in a free-for-all. He meets Ray Lyle, of Akron.

Parkersburg Track Victory Protested

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 10.—(AP.)—Authorities of West Virginia University, sponsors of Saturday's state track meet, will decide today on a formal protest against Parkersburg High School's rating in last week's sectional meet.

The Washington Irving High School, of Clarksburg, claims Parkersburg used 19 men in the sectional meet. The limit is 15. If the protest is allowed, Parkersburg's winning mile relay team will be eliminated and Clarksburg will get first place.

JACK TO BOX TWO MAXES

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey is returning to the ring to fight both Max Baer and Max Schmeling—in exhibitions.

The former heavyweight champion, who is promoting the 15-round bout between Schmeling and Baer here June 8, plans to box two rounds with Schmeling at the German's camp on Lake Swannanoa, in New Jersey, in about 10 days and then will go a couple of rounds with Baer at Atlantic City a few days later.

Cobb and Tilden Back in Headlines

NEW YORK, May 10.—(INS.)—The names of Ty Cobb and William T. Tilden, bannered in sports headlines for a generation, popped up today—but they were a couple of other guys.

Ty Cobb, Jr., son of the former baseball star and a member of the Yale tennis team, starred in the doubles as the Elis defeated Williams at New Haven. William T. Tilden, nephew of "Big Bill," was elected captain of Princeton's undefeated freshman tennis team.

Fight Results

At Toronto—Tommy Bland knocked out Marty Stone, 3 rounds; Oasie Bodkin defeated Billy Kowalik, 6 rounds; Steve Rocco defeated Marty Geld, 6 rounds; Max Kadin defeated Johnny Dulin, 4 rounds.

The Victory Club won the water ball championship of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House when it defeated the Imperial Club, 6 to 1.

PITT NETTERS AT NAVY; LOOP EXPANDED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Capt. Billy O'Loughlin and his Pitt net varsity opens the four-day eastern invasion by meeting Navy at Annapolis this afternoon. Georgetown, Maryland and George Washington will be battled tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, respectively.

The Dukes-W. and J. engagement, slated for the Bluff yesterday, was postponed because of heavy showers.

Semi-final and final contests of the doubles tourney begun last evening as feature of the annual Pittsburgh Tennis Association supper and smoker at the Pittsburgh Golf Club will be run off on the P. G. C. covered courts tonight.

A field of 29 teams was reduced to a quartet in an inaugural session that continued to the accompaniment of the din of a terrific rain and hail storm till long after midnight. Matches were limited to one set and, except for quarter-final tussles, all sets that went to deuce were cut short at 6-5.

At a brief meeting of the P. T. A. executive committee in the course of the soiree it was decided to admit a second Rockwood squad into Section II of the Inter-Club League. Possibility of additional aggregations from P. A. A. and Stanton Heights, as well as of a new group from Ralph Park in Bellevue, seems strong.

Tennis Chairman Bill Clardy, of the Westinghouse Club, states that dates for the revival of the Allegheny County championships on the Electric rectangles will be determined in the near future.

The doubles summary:

Rhea defeated Roger Deney and A. J. Glaser, 6-3; J. R. Brown and Crosby Leyda defeated W. J. Purcell, Jr., and Roy Getty, 6-5; W. R. Spindler and M. Tichvinsky defeated R. J. Moore and Edwin McCloskey, 6-1.

SECOND ROUND

Upper half—Edgar Alcorn and Kenneth Rinehart defeated J. Don Mattern and T. L. Jones, 6-3; Clardy and Patin defeated Ramsburg and J. H. Moore, 6-4; Henderson and Hartig defeated Thomas Orr and Walton, 6-4; Snyder and Dave O'Loughlin defeated Redmond and W. B. McKenna, Jr., 6-1.

Lower half—Smith and Wald defeated Howard Burgwin and Rumsey, 6-5; Kaufmann and Pennock Orr defeated John O'Loughlin and William McKenna, 6-5; Lockhart and Rhea defeated Brown and Leyda, 6-5; Spindler and Tichvinsky defeated Andrew Smeaton and P. G. Sullivan, 6-2.

THIRD ROUND

Upper half—Clardy and Patin defeated Alcorn and K. Rinehart, 6-2; Snyder and Dave O'Loughlin defeated Hartig and Henderson, 8-6.

Lower half—Smith and Wald defeated P. Orr and Kaufmann, 6-2; Spindler and Tichvinsky won from Lockhart and Rhea by default.

Shady Side Teams Get Even Break

The Shady Side gunners defeated Kiski in a trapshooting match at Saltsburg, 223 to 215, with Kirk, of Kiski, being high gun man with a mark of 48. McGowan, of Shady Side, was second with 47.

Springdale High School's golf team defeated the Academy linksmen in a Golf Conference match, 13 to 5. It was Shady Side's fifth consecutive defeat.

STOCKER NAMED NEW GOLF PRO AT STANTON

By TOM BIRKS

Officials of the Stanton Heights Golf Club today announced William Stocker has been appointed professional to replace Jimmy Carroll, effective at once.

The new professional has been caddie master at Stanton Heights for three years. He came from the Clearfield Country Club, where he was professional. Previously he was pro at the Ridgeway (Pa.) Country Club.

OPENING AT WILDWOOD

Wildwood Country Club will have its official opening next Saturday. Professional Nelson Zimmerman is making preparations to handle a large crowd.

On Friday, the Shady Side Alumni Association will hold a tourney at Churchill Valley.

Happy Hapchuck reports that a new roadway has been built into the Duquesne Golf Club, eliminating that dirt road that caused plenty of trouble last season. Hap reports the course is in fine shape, and that the dues have been lowered to suit the pocketbook of the average golfer.

Duquesne and West Virginia golf teams will clash this afternoon at Stanton Heights Golf Club.

ELDRED AT SCRANTON

Vincent Eldred, Pennsylvania state open champion, is going to give the national qualifying round the go-by Monday. Eldred is on the exempt list and plans to visit Scranton Country Club to take a whirl around the layout where he has to defend his open title in July.

The women's matches scheduled at Longue Vue and Stanton Heights today were postponed until Friday.

BAYUK'S GUARANTEE In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Handmade") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America. Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine Havana and Domestic long-filler—the same ripe tobacco.

THE INDEPENDENT BREWING COMPANY

Announces

A NEW PRICE ON

SILVER TOP BEER

Effective May 10th, 1933

$2.00 per case of 24 bottles
Plus $1.00 deposit

This small advance in price is made necessary by

First—The Pennsylvania State Tax which was increased to over 50% more than the original tax expected.

Second—An increase in wages which the Company has made to its workmen, putting the Union Scale back to the pre-prohibition rate.

Third—The increased prices of brewing material caused by the sudden great demand, which has created a serious shortage and has raised the cost of Malt over 50% and the cost of Hops 100%.

JOHN A. FRIDAY, President

It will interest you to know that even with this slight increase in price, Pittsburghers are paying less for their beer than residents of any other city in the United States. As a matter of fact, you will pay three dollars or more a case for out-of-town beer of a quality comparable with Silver Top.

BUSINESS-U. S. PARTNERSHIP PROPOSED

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 10.—President Roosevelt's candid revelations of his economic objectives emphasizes that the present administration is grappling with the realities of modern life. Price levels, central banking policy and foreign exchange ratios — such technical adjustments have had more bearing on the welfare of human beings than the purely political questions which heretofore have had the attention of government. While political government maintained its outward trapping, the real decisions which affected popular well-being were in the past being made to a large extent by invisible government—acting through corporation executives and bankers.

Mr. Rukeyser

DIVIDE POWER

The "new deal" effort to apply Democratic processes to economic, as well as to political questions, constitutes an important experiment—of great importance to all of us.

In taking the initiative in these matters out of private hands exclusively, the President proposes that in the future the power be wielded by a partnership between industry and government.

There has been much mental speculation concerning the President's declaration that he would use the various powers granted in the Thomas inflationary amendment "when, if and as" necessary.

INFLATION STAND

To some this was interpreted to mean that the Thomas amendment would be a dead letter, yet the administration has definitely set out to raise the commodity price level to the pre-depression average. A fair interpretation would appear to be that the executive is seeking to accomplish the price advance by the threat of inflation, rather than by actual inflation, and by a series of trade building policies, including public works, farm relief and new freedom to business to make trade practice agreements. To the extent to which these policies raise the price level, the President might soft pedal the newly granted discretionary monetary powers, but would hold them in reserve to be used if necessary to make the counter deflationary effort successful.

The President graphically stated the fact that outstanding promises to pay gold exceeded the capacity to pay out gold by 25 to 1. Some monetary reformers would go back to a system of currency based on government bonds which would enable banks freely to convert deposits into currency.

National Steel Net Profits to Jump For Quarter

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE SPURT IN steel mill activity may be expected to produce a sharp upturn in the earnings of the National Steel Corporation. This company has been the only major steel producer to show profits during the depression.

The expansion in the general demand for steel together with the particularly marked increase in the requirements of the automobile builders has materially increased National's profits. National is the only outstanding steel company with production facilities in the Detroit district. Naturally this plant has materially expanded its output.

Where the improvement in their sales of steel products will merely reduce losses or eliminate losses so far as other steel companies are concerned, it will be directly reflected in profits for National.

Quarterly Profits Expected to Double

IT IS DIFFICULT to make close estimates of probable earnings for the second quarter with less than half of the period passed. However, the current volume of business, together with the rate at which orders are being received provides an indication.

In answer to the question:

"Do you think that the improvement will make it possible for National Steel to show profits for the second quarter double those of the first quarter?"

An official replied:

"If they are not more than double we shall be disappointed."

In the first quarter of the year, National showed net profits of $280,844. This was equivalent to 13 cents a share on the stock and covered the current quarterly dividend payment of 12½ cents a share. Interest charges were earned 1.23 times.

Strength Reflected In Company's Bonds

DURING THE PAST two months improvement in the steel industry and the company's position as the only profitable steel company has been reflected in the organization's bonds. The first collateral mortgage 5s due in 1956 have advanced from a low of 69 early in March to a current price of about 84. Their recently established high was 85¼.

At the end of the first quarter, the company's cash and net current asset position was the best in its history. At the same time it was declared that full 1933 sinking fund requirements on the first collateral 5s had been met and that the required amount of bonds had been retired.

STEEL REPORT CHECKS STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Financial markets shook off recent reactionary tendencies today and climbed up the ladder a few more rungs.

Stocks had a brisk spurt in the early dealings, although a somewhat smaller than expected gain in United States Steel's orders was a restraining influence after midday. Cotton advanced about a dollar a bale, and wheat and corn pushed up 1 to 2 cents. Silver futures rallied, but sugar sagged.

United States Steel's monthly report of the orders on its books showed a gain of 23,572 tons for April. This was the first increase since October, but was rather smaller than some quarters in the street had anticipated, in view of the marked pickup in operations.

However, it was pointed out in some steel quarters that business had continued to improve in May, which it had feared might be cancelled. What the steel business needs for a real revival, trade authorities said, is a pickup in railroad buying and in heavy construction.

The upturn in the morning reflected in part covering by shorts who had been anticipating a good technical "shakeout." Brokers said many traders have been awaiting a setback to buy, however, so that the market has been meeting support on recessions of character discouraging to shorts.

STEEL TONNAGE UP 23,572

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP.)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation increased 23,572 tons in April to a total of 1,864,574 tons, the corporation announced today.

The March tonnage decreased 13,198 tons to the lowest level since figures have been issued.

Wall street had been confident of a fair gain in the backlog because of marked improvement in demand for steel during April. It was calculated that new buying for a considerable part of April was at a more active rate than the increase in production and shipments.

The increase was the first experience by the corporation since last October. Small increases in that month and in August and September, 1932, constituted the only break in a steady decline in backlog extending over more than a year.

GRAIN VALUES RISE SHARPLY

CHICAGO, May 10.—(AP.)—Sharp advances in grain values early today were associated with British acceptance of a tariff truce.

Elimination of price fixing in the farm commodity bill at Washington was also construed as bullish. Opening 7/8-1¾c higher, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn started 1⅜-2½c up, and subsequently reacted somewhat.

Scarcity of wheat offerings led later to higher prices than prevailed during rushes to purchase at today's start. New advances in corn resulted from buying for houses with Eastern connections and from predictions of snow falls in Western parts of the corn belt. Oats borrowed strength from corn.

Provisions advanced with grains.

LABOR SCORES RAIL PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, May 10.—(INS.)—A vigorous protest against the administration bill for emergency railroad reorganization was lodged before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today by Donald R. Richberg, of Chicago, attorney for the railroad brotherhood. He declared:

"Ninety per cent of the operating economies proposed under this measure would be achieved at the expense of railroad employes."

A 30-hour week on the railroads was urged by Senator Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, to "sop up the loss of jobs."

OBITUARY

C. A. Byler,

ALTOONA, Pa., May 10.—(INS.)—Cyrus Allen Byler, 68, formerly of Harrisburg and Allensville, died at the home of his son, the Rev. C. A. Byler, Jr., of the Bare Memorial Church at Roaring Springs. For 40 years Byler was a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor living in Harrisburg.

He leaves four sons, the Rev. Byler and L. R. and D. O. Byler, both of Pittsburgh, and Carroll C. Byler, New Kensington.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER XLIII.

What Eldon Dunn thought about the affairs of the family had never been of much importance. It had always been Dodie who thought and spoke and acted for everybody, Dodie who had always let Sharlie know in a hundred discontented ways that married life with a poor husband was not what she wanted for her.

"Never marry a man who can't give you enough silk stockings and someone in the kitchen to cook the meals and wash up the dishes," she said dozens of times to Sharlie, her hands plunged into a pan of gray soapy dish water.

"Anyone can set herself on a trash barrel for life, Sharlie," had been another of her stock phrases. "You have the looks—now, please do have the brains to marry well. Every girl makes or breaks herself the way she marries."

Sharlie had never thought of consulting her father about her marriage to Mr. Collins. The earning of the salary—that was his one important function in the home. He was not even the host. It was always Dodie who invited people to the house, suggested the poker game "I" when she meant herself and her husband.

EDNA GIVES ADVICE

She was doing it now in the hall as she spoke to Mr. Collins over the telephone. Her voice, loud and high and sweet, came into the dining room. "Won't you come over and have one o'clock dinner here? I'd love to have you," it said, "and so would Sharlie."

Eldon Dunn repeated the question he had asked a moment before. "Sharlie, how do you feel about this fellow—all questions of money aside," he asked. Did you ever stop to think that you're going to have to live with him, and not with his bank book?"

"I like him," Sharlie answered slowly, her eyes full of her uncertainty. "I thought I was—well, simply crazy about him a while ago. But that's worn off now—that crush, or whatever it was. And I still like him. I'm not mad about him, but I like him and I look up to him, I think. I don't like anybody better than I like him. That's certain."

"It's a crime to marry him if you aren't really in love with him," said Edna unexpectedly. "He wasn't so very happy with his first wife, and I think he deserves one satisfactory marriage in his life. And, Sharlie, why on earth are you getting married unless you're in love?—I thought you cared for Mr. Collins."

MANY YEARS OLDER

"Seems to me he's a little old for you, baby," Sharlie's father remarked in his quiet, apologetic way. "He's a nice fellow, and all that, but just about twenty-five years too old for you, isn't he? He's been married, too, and he's lived a good part of his life already——"

"And so has your daughter been married!" Sharlie's mother interrupted him from the doorway. "It's silly to get sentimental about this. Sharlie's been in love with Mr. Collins for months, and if she cares for him it won't make any difference to her that he's older than she. She can take care of all that part of this marriage, but we're her parents and we've got to look after the financial side of it. It's up to us to find out just how well she is going to be provided for—and we've got to do it now. We won't know what's happening down in Arizona after they're married, except from what Sharlie tells us in letters, and you can bet your last dollar that she won't tell us much. Women hate to go to their families and tell them what a mess they've made of things after they marry!" She glared at Eldon as if she had been too proud, as a bride, to go complaining to her family about him.

COLLINS ARRIVES

"Well, we can't sit here all day!" she said briskly. "If we have company coming for one o'clock dinner we'd better begin to think about dinner. Edna, will you make the dressing for the veal roast? I'd do it, but if I touch raw onions my hands smell of them for a week."

At one o'clock Mr. Collins arrived in his car.

He came, not as a worried suitor who wonders if he is going to be accepted or not, but as a man who is very sure of himself. There was a white pasteboard box under his arm, with a hole cut in one end through which the long stems of flowers protruded.

"Chrysanthemums for you," he said to Dodie, laying the box in her arms and dropping his overcoat into Eldon Dunn's hands as if he were a manservant standing there to receive it.

Dodie put on her best black satin dress for the occasion, a dress that curbed the lines of her figure that were just a little too full these days. "Hanging around home has made me put on pounds," Dodie had confided to Sharlie several times. "If I just had a little money I could take some Turkish baths and get rid of some of this fat. But there isn't any money."

Money, Money, Money. . .

The word was like the chorus of a song in the household, and always had been. "Will you give me the rent money, please, Eldon? Mr. Gunderson is coming for it tomorrow" . . . "I've got to have some money for new curtains" . . . "If we had the money we could go shopping for some of these Friday bargains"—

Edna and Sharlie put the dinner on the table. Roast veal with sage-and-onion dressing, thick gravy, mashed potatoes, broccoli, head lettuce salad, and apple pie with coffee. The heavy kind of meal that a man loves.

APPRECIATES COOKING

Mr. Collins ate enormously and drank two large cups of coffee with cream and sugar. "Sharlie, I hope you can cook half as well as your mother can," he said as he got up from the table, and Dodie beamed her thanks at him.

"I cooked this meal, Mr. Collins."

It was Edna's voice, low and calm, from the other side of the table where she had sat without saying three words all during the meal. She was gazing up at him with her deep blue eyes looking more blue than ever above the flush on her cheeks. Her hair was waved loosely over her ears instead of being brushed back into a flat coil on her neck, and she was still wearing the blue cotton housedress that she had put on for breakfast. Over it was an apron that she had not bothered to take off.

"See, this is where I burned my arm, taking the pie out of the oven," she said, and rolled back her long sleeve to show him a blister just above the wrist. "That was the first deep-dish apple pie I ever made—I remembered that it was your favorite pie."

He stopped on his way out of the room and stepped back to the table. "How did you know it was? he asked.

WANTS EDNA'S HELP

Edna sent him a smile that did not look like a very happy smile to Sharlie who stood watching her from the living room doorway. "Have you forgotten how many years we've known each other, Mr. Collins? —I seem to have picked up a great deal of knowledge about you in that time, somehow." She spoke quietly, still smiling up at him with her eyes. "I know more things about you than anyone in the world, I suppose. I know that you're cross if you don't get your lunch on time, and that you hate to go to the tailor's for a fitting, and that you don't like to sign checks or discharge people——"

"You've always taken care of the mean jobs for me, haven't you, Edna?" He sat down again, holding his unlighted cigar and his engraved silver lighter in his hands.

Sharlie and her mother and father went into the living room, but his voice followed them there as he went on talking to Edna.

"I'm going down to Phoenix some time in January," he said, "to go into business there. Real estate and bonds and insurance. You know that I'm through here, of course . . . You'll go down there with me, won't you? I'm not taking anyone of the old organization except you. I couldn't run my business without you down there to help me."

There was a little pause and then he asked, "You'll go, won't you?—I thought perhaps you'd go on ahead of me and get things started. We can go into the details tomorrow at the office."

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Last Night

Last night spring crept into my heart,
With beauty, fresh and fair;
My heart had been so very tired,
But spring stirred something there.

She passed beneath the poplar trees,
Her footfall soft and light,
Through beds of violets she came,
Straight to my heart, last night.

I had not thought that I could care
When spring returned this year;
But, ah! she is a joyous thing,
So fragrant and so dear!

And when she spoke to me last night
I heard loved melodies,
For gay young spring came in with hands
A-brim with memories!

ROLLING INGOT ON A 35-INCH BLOOMING MILL

Rolling is the most important process of mechanical shaping of steel, effected by cylindrical bodies (rolls) between which the steel is drawn by friction. The distance between the axes of the rolls is the size of the mill. Sections reduced from the ingot to 6 inches square or greater, are called 'blooms'; if smaller, 'billets'; if oblong, 'slabs.' Rails, angles, channels, beams, and other sections are obtained through further rolling. (Steel.)

SKETCH OF THREE-HIGH BLOOMING MILL

It has three rolls (A, B, C) vertically arranged with a series of passes (1 to 7) for subsequent reductions. The ingot, reduced in pass 1, is reversed and sent to pass 2, and so on until reduced to a shape corresponding to the last (7) pass. The rolls are held in the roll housing. (D) gear-housing; (E, F and G) pinions; (S) driving shaft coupled with electric motor or steam engine. (Camp and Francis: The Making, Shaping and Treating of Steel.)

BRAZIL DECLARED AN EMPIRE, AND THE PORTUGUESE PRINCE, PEDRO I, EMPEROR (1822)

The effects of the Napoleonic wars reached beyond the ocean. Portuguese King John fled before the invading French (1807) to his colony, Brazil, and declared it a kingdom. After the Congress of Vienna, King John returned to Portugal as king, leaving Pedro, his son, as governor of Brazil. Displeased Brazilians declared their country an independent empire and Pedro their emperor. In 1889 the Brazilian empire became a republic. (Thompson: The Book of Knowledge.) (World's History.)

GENERATION OF ELECTRICITY

Moving a conductor in a magnetic field so that it should cut the magnetic lines of force (not moving parallel) electric current is generated in the conductor. Pointing with the left thumb in direction of the motion of the conductor and with the index finger toward the south pole, the 90° bent middle finger will show the direction of the current generated in the conductor. (Dawes: Electrical Engineering (Science.)

FIELD OF ELECTRO MAGNET

The north pole (N) can be found by two rules: 1. Swimming with the current (N) will be toward the right; 2. Grasping the coil with the right hand, so that the fingers run in direction of the current, the thumb will point toward (N). (Dawes: Electrical Engineering.) Science).

WIRING OF BUILDINGS

The wires should be insulated and steel-clad or laid in conduits. The lines are branching out from the fuse-box so that each should carry about equal amperage. Figures indicate number of lamps. Maximum load of copper wires (American Wire Gauge), No. 18, 3 amps; No. 16, 6 amps; No. 14, 15 amps; No. 12, 20 amps; No. 10, 25 amps, etc. (Hawkins: Electrical Guide.) (Science.)

THE GENERAL COURSE OF CIRCULATION IN ANIMALS

The change of respiratory habit brought about the development of the lungs in place of the gills; involved changes in the blood vessels and lead by gradual steps to the definite division of the heart into right and left halves; the right side propelling the blood through the respiratory apparatus and the left through the general somatic circulation. Santa Barbara to the Rescue

Last month we suggested that even a prune was a beautiful bud some time in its career.

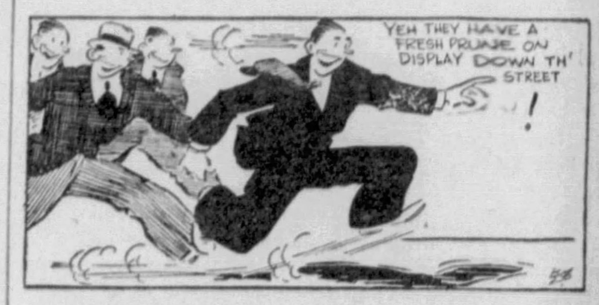
Mr. Jackson shins up the oratorical trellis to announce:

"Why slam the poor prune as you did in that apple blossom paragraph? None of your Easterners have ever seen a prune in its youth.

"All you New Yorkers see of the prune is its mummy.

"The old Pharaoh may have been a strapping lad in its day, but you would never guess it from looking at his dessicated carcass in the Egyptian museum.

"Same with the prune mummy. But, let me detour you correctly. The fresh prune tops the plum like an apple leads a potato. You have never tasted a fresh prune. All you get in the East is what's left of it.



"The peach and the pear are insipid when compared with the prune and are not to be mentioned on the same menu with this monarch of the boarding house.

"If you ever get a wonderful tasting plum in canned form the probabilities are that it is a prune with its face lifted.

"More power to the prune. I hope that, some day, you have the enjoyment of meeting up with something beside its mummy."
"Very truly, H. C. Jackson."

With that, the defense rests its case. We happened to have mentioned peach blossom time in Georgia and wondered why nobody had ever glorified that orchid of the lunch wagon, the prune.

Mr. Jackson reaches out a long, bony letter from Santa Barbara and sets us right. We apologize to Mr. Jackson, Santa Barbara and the prune. It all proves that everybody has a friend somewhere. If the matter reaches the crisis of a duel we will fight at 50 paces if Mr. Jackson can toss a prune that far.

In the meantime, we will take one order of apricots.

The Kaufmann Work Plan

It Offers an Opportunity to Spread Business and Increase Taxable Values

More and more evident it is, as the depression runs its enervating course, that every available means must be utilized by government and by business to get fifteen million idle workers back on the country's payrolls.

As the Hearst newspapers have repeatedly and consistently advocated, a comprehensive program of Federal public works, amply financed by a governmental bond issue, has been urgently needed to stimulate languishing industries.

Had such a program been instituted and energetically carried out in the early stage of the depression, conditions today would be vastly better than they are. Some Federal work was undertaken, but on so small a scale as to be utterly ineffective. States and localities making efforts in the same direction were obviously unorganized to meet the national problem. At last, under the Roosevelt leadership, progress is in sight along the necessary lines; but meanwhile, loss of time has aggravated difficulties, and new needs for constructive work have accumulated.

Consequently, the Federal public works program which is to be advanced can and should be supplemented, under Federal auspices, by other projects which will make employment and contribute to the restoration of our economic life.

In order to place a practicable proposal for such auxiliary activities before the people and the Federal government the Hearst newspapers have published from coast to coast a work program which has been formulated by Edgar J. Kaufmann, well known merchant and business economist of Pittsburgh, with the counsel and assistance of a notable group of advisers.

Briefly, Mr. Kaufmann points out that an enormous field for labor exists, because of the ravages of depression, in the form of taxable private property which lies unimproved or which has become "run down." He therefore proposes that governmental funds shall be applied, on a loan basis, to the rehabilitation or betterment of such property.

So that the proposal may be carried out effectively and broadly, Mr. Kaufmann would establish Federal and state bureaus to contract with persons and firms having properties or plants to be rehabilitated or developed.

Operating capital would be advanced through the bureaus by the state or Federal government—such as Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans—and the government would receive ten-year "obligations" on the improved or rehabilitated property, to be paid off by amortization or at the end of the ten-year term.

The bureaus would facilitate or place orders for materials required in the projects, and would register and provide the necessary labor.

No project is to compete with local labor, industry or banking; and wages are to be those current, by occupation, in each locality.

It is further proposed that "colonies" of at least five hundred families, or 2,000 persons, may be established and, wherever possible, the government bureaus shall return men to the farms or trades where they once were.

The importance of Mr. Kaufmann's plan is this: it brings to public and official attention a particularized field for the supplemental emergency employment of labor—a field which is nation-wide, which, if utilized, will have the effect of spreading business, and which will increase taxable values throughout the country instead of merely dissipating or sterilizing public money.

This available field largely exists, in Mr. Kaufmann's thesis, because of the inadequacy and failure of insufficiently financed work programs in the past. In his words:

"It was found expedient to use available money for relief, rather than for work and materials.

"Concurrently, there was brought about a moratorium for improvement and repair work on private and corporate property of all descriptions, due to the freezing of capital and credit. Therefore, it is solely a problem of developing a program of work, credit and finance.

"Property has now reached the point where further disintegration will be more costly than rehabilitation. Under this plan, the government makes it possible for the taxpayer to create employment and thereby render those on relief self-supporting.

"The taxpayer, by availing himself of the opportunity to offer employment, reduces his taxes and reconditions his property."

The taxpayer's relief, as Mr. Kaufmann shows, will arise only in part from taking millions of jobless men off the relief funds, which taxpayers now provide, and putting these men on payrolls. Widespread improvement of private property will increase tax values and augment tax revenues.

As the proposal of a successful businessman, experienced in complex economic and organization problems, the Kaufmann work plan ought to commend itself to Congress and to state officials.

Wharf Improvements

Mr. Monteverde's Committee Has Submitted an Attractive Plan, and Deserves Thanks For Its Work

The committee headed by L. W. Monteverde that was invited by City Council to recommend water front improvements has submitted a plan that is attractive, practical and not unduly expensive.

It proposes that Duquesne way and Water street be widened into six-lane, two-way boulevards, and that the wharves be paved at a less steep slope than at present.

The plan would provide a marginal thoroughfare for by-passing through motor traffic and for re-distributing local traffic so as to relieve congestion in the Golden Triangle. The wharves could be used more conveniently by river craft, and the facilities for parking automobiles on the water front would be improved.

The committee, it is pleasant to note, regards beauty as well as usefulness as important, and says, "in later study attention can and should be directed to architectural design, and to providing any desirable park or memorial features desired for the ultimate plan."

The committee has very obviously put a great deal of work and thought into the formulation of its plan, and deserves thanks for it.

Pavlova Is Gone

But Here Is Her Wonderful Dancing Foot.

BRONZE CAST OF THE FOOT OF MADAME ANNA PAVLOVA FAMOUS RUSSIAN BALLET DANCER, WHO DIED RECENTLY

This foot, showing the marvelous muscular force exerted by Anna Pavlova in her dancing, is to be shown in a museum for the admiration of all and the enlightenment of ambitious young dancers.

Usually museums show the other end of the human body, the head that does the thinking. This is an interesting change.

On this foot and its mate Anna Pavlova danced across the stage as lightly as thistledown blowing over a field. The ankle and the lower part of the leg show that she was thin and light.

The power displayed in the instep, bent backward, shows how marvellously she had developed muscles, bones and joints, adapting them to her difficult dancing. She would leap high in the air, and land on one toe as shown here. You should not try it; you would hurt yourself.

In the schools of ballet dancing little girls begin practising on their toe tips as early as four years of age. If they begin after eight they are not apt to go very far. The Russians have excelled in this style of dancing, although the greatest ballet school is at Milan in Italy. Few, even of the greatest dancers, have been able to do "pointage," which means dancing on the tip of the toes, with real comfort and grace.

The greatest of all such dancers was Taglioni, the Italian, dead long ago. Anna Pavlova was generally considered the best exponent of the ballet dancing school in recent times.

Many in New York will remember her marvelous dancing when she first came to this country and was presented to their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, at the old "Sherry's," in her dance of "The Swan."

Marry-Go-Round

A New Deal for Love

Now that everybody is getting a New Deal, it is the psychological moment for woman to demand a new deal for LOVE. Or a new deal IN love.

* * *

By a new deal, we mean a SQUARE deal. Because that's about the only kind of "new" deal that men could offer woman. She's had every other kind of deal in the last few centuries.

* * *

I don't mean that any modern girl expects or really wants a revival of old-fashioned romance and sentiment. They are as dead as last year's lilies and would set about as unnaturally on a girl, today, as those foolish little half-portion, half-witted hats.

What every normal woman wants is complete REPEAL of all the old love-games, and the restoration of honest, frank, reliable, bona fide 100-proof love.

Love as a racket or a "game" went into the discard when marriage ceased to be a get-rich-quick scheme and a husband ceased to be a financial necessity. Only gold-diggers and gigolos "play" at it now—and they play for real money.

The average girl is heartily weary of being told how to "capture" a man, how to "get" a husband, how to "make" a Boy Friend and how to "win" a man's heart. Above all, she is tired of being told how to "hold a man's love." She doesn't want the kind of love that has to be locked in a safety-vault or kept in a thermos-bottle. And she's not going to work overtime to keep a weak love alive by artificial stimulation.

This business of "putting on a show" in order to hold a man's interest or to catch his fancy, is as moth-eaten as grandmother's rag-bag and as mid-Victorian as a sea-shell on the mantelpiece.

If you are a man's TYPE, he will fall in love with you, no matter what you say or what you do or how you look. And he will love you just as well with a shiny nose in your old house pajamas, as when you have just stepped out of a beauty parlor.

* * *

A man's love is like blue eyes or a sense of humor. If you have it, you HAVE it—and nothing can take it from you. And if you haven't got it—there is no way on earth that you can "win" it. When all women grasp this simple fact, the trade in lipsticks may fall off, but love and marriage will get a square deal.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 10.—Col. Lindbergh seems definitely to have abandoned a career of action for a solitude of contemplation. Those who know say seldom is he seen even around the grounds of his estate. Certainly no other American hero has kept himself to himself so zealously.

It is almost an unfailing weakness of a celebrity at some time or other to fly from himself into a pose. Lindbergh never has. A tenderness for his grievously stricken wife has become a consuming passion. If he leaves her an hour he uses the telephone. He follows her everywhere.

There is one friend of his flying days privileged to see him now and then and something of his wry smile is restored. But outside this his companionship is limited to members of his wife's family. His policy of exclusion is not due to a confusion in his destiny.

His realized ambitions have been squeezed dry by sorrow and mendacity. It is as though he wants no more of the world's confidences. Facing martyrdom with stoicism that puts his admirers on their knees, he offers no outlet for sympathy. His seems a tragic effort to triumph over bitterness.

No other section offers the gloomy futility of that slinky stretch of West Fifty-third street, snuggled under the elevated. I never pass through it without involuntary shudder. Somewhere in its shadows I visited the first dope parlor I ever saw. It was in 1915. My guide was Don Clarke, the author, then a reporter for a morning paper, investigating Broadway drug rings.

* * *

At a scrofulous brown stone bearing a mildewed brass sign, "Room and Board," we were admitted by a typical rooming house drudge into a front parlor. A chemically blonde and beerily buxom landlady dawdled over solitaire, a Negro maid looking on. Now and then starey, pasty hollow-eyed wrecks wandered in from another room—cocaine and heroin addicts. The maid kept offering them water for insatiable thirsts. All seemed totally bereft of speech, living wraiths. Now and then the landlady would look up from her cards to relate extravagant fairy tales, the grandeur of which I was told would weave through the phantasy of their dreams when they took another "shot." It was grimly horrible, but pleasant to read weeks later of a raid that sent the landlady to Sing Sing.

* * *

The national advertising campaign exposing magicians' secrets did more damage to the illusionists guild than was imagined. Hundreds, especially with tent and repertoire shows, find there is no demand for their art. Even such expert prestidigitators as Nate Leipzig, John Mulholland and Fred Keating find their best Maskelyne and Devant tricks falling with a skush. The most deceiving are simple and the fun was in making people wonder and try to outthink the magician.

* * *

Every New York luggage store seems to open with a sale and continues the ballyhoo throughout existence. They remind me of my first luggage store purchase—a suitcase on Dearborn street in Chicago. It was made of a new process, I believe they called leatheroid. Anyway tugging it to the Polk Street Station I was caught in a fierce shower. The suitcase melted like a dunked ginger snap and the goo ran down the trouser leg of my $14.98 Sunday suit.

* * *

This was the quixotic trip on which I left home to become a newspaperman, inspired by Grandma's advice: "It's good work, I guess, if you can get it to do."

* * *

Bob Davis, dropping in a moment, picked up a morning paper and observed it was funny how many bankers were found cleaning their revolvers in bathrooms these days.

* * *

And walking with Joe Laurie, Jr., across town, one of those fuzzy white poodles darted out of an areaway and barked furiously at our heels. Its head suggested a clean, white mop. Glancing back, Laurie observed: "I'll bet its mother was frightened by Sid Grauman."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Pennsylvania youngsters, picketing the sweatshops which employed them at starvation wages—

For what?

To protest against the parents who send them to work daily?

To expose a government which permits their young bodies to be broken over benches, their young brains to be dulled by long hours of night labor, denying them the humane protection which it accords its commonest swine?

Oh, no! Such a magnitude of rebellion never enters these troubled young heads. Long since, such mad thoughts were stamped from their tired little minds, along with memories of sunshine and sweet earth and happy, carefree play-game hours. Now they ask only "a fair wage."

Just a few cents more than the 50 cents a week for which their childhood has been sold!

American children striking for better sweatshop wages! Now, isn't that a proud and beautiful sight for the world to see?

And what will they be thinking of us, over there across the water—remembering all our brave fine talk back there in '17, and the Yanks who went so gladly marching to their death because some one told them "the Huns are cutting off babies' hands?"

Cutting off babies' hands! We went raging wild at the thought! Fiends incarnate! Monstrous beasts! We couldn't cross the sea fast enough to put a stop to such a horror—which it is now highly doubtful ever happened even in a single case.

But have you heard any howls of protest from local patriots because BY THE THOUSANDS WE'RE CUTTING OFF OUR BABIES' YOUTH—MANGLING THEIR DREAMS—DWARFING THEIR SOULS—BRANDING THEM FOR LIFE WITH THE SLAVE MARK OF THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR?

No, you haven't. And you won't.

Yet this is the simple, foul fact. Despite our boasts about the "sanctity of American childhood," NO CIVILIZED COUNTRY ON EARTH EXPLOITS CHILD LABOR MORE CRUELLY THAN DOES AMERICA.

And not in one state alone. In many states. In coal mines and cotton fields, beet fields and prune orchards, sweat shops and factories—THE CHILDREN OF AMERICA TOIL LIKE LITTLE BEASTS OF BURDEN.

And why?

Simply because we don't care enough to make child labor a matter of effective state or national concern.

Oranges and guinea pigs? They're different. We have federal protection for them. Fishing streams and forest preserves? We can work up no end of excitement over these, back in Washington, D. C. And as for beer! Now, there's something that involves our very constitution!

But the children of America—

The sweated little ones who were to be the heirs of all this treasure, the beneficiaries of all this struggle—

Force through a federal child labor law which will protect them? No; that's different. That violates States' Rights. That, gentlemen, is no concern of our Mighty Master Minds.

So—t'ell with the children!
